Penn Central's New President Gets To Work

Plans Meetings With Workmen To Seek Solution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first step in William H. Moore's plan to rescue the financially distressed Penn Central Railroad is to shuck his coat for overalls and meet the thousands who work for the giant carrier.

Moore, an executive vice president of Southern Railway System, was named president and chief executive officer Wednesday of the Penn Central, the nation's biggest railroad.

His first ask, he said in an interview, is to "raise the morale of the people by getting out with them. And I don't mean the top managers or just the middle and lower supervisors. I mean the rank-and-file workers."

Moore reasons that getting to know his employees will help him reach his objective of improving Penn Central service across the board. He said he learned from his 29 years with Southern that Penn Central service has left much to be desired.

He's especially concerned about passenger service. "I'm going to see to it that it is first class with trains running on time. Dining-car service should be unexcelled with quality and courtesy more like what you get on airlines."

Moore, 54, a native of Hazard, Ky., was named Penn Central president by court-appointed trustees in Philadelphia. The appointment is subject to approval by U.S. Dist. Court Judge John P. Fullam who has been overseeing the rail line since it filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws June 21.

The trustees called appointment of Moore "the essential first step in getting the Penn Central back into effective operation." They said the appointment reflected their "recognition that reorganizing the Penn Central and refinancing it must start with making it an efficient carrier of both passengers and freight."

Moore will be leaving Southern, a line with only half the track and a third the employees of Penn Central, for a company which lost $141.5 million during the first six months of the year. Southern showed a net income of $27.7 million during the same period, up 19 per cent from last year.

OU Starts Judiciary For Students

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — A new student judiciary system with student courts for two levels of misconduct, randomly selected juries and due process of law rights and procedures were announced today by Ohio University President Claude R. Sowle.

Adoption of the new system comes after Sowle's review of recommendations from a university workshop which met in June to discuss changes that might be needed in university policies.

Sowle, a lawyer, developed the new system, calling it "a revised judicial system that is uncomplicated, easy to understand, and fair to both the accused and the university."

Under the system, charges of serious misconduct involving students will be under the jurisdiction of a University Judiciary which will have hearing panels of five students, selected at random.

A qualified university representative will determine whether action should be taken within the university or through the civil courts. If the panel finds the student guilty it will recommend a sanction which may include suspension or expulsion.

Final determination of the penalty to be imposed will be made by the school's vice president of educational services, who will review the case and findings of the jury.

Israel Claims Egypt Violates Cease-Fire

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israeli state radio claimed today that Egypt has moved several SAM anti-aircraft missile batteries to within 12 and 18 miles of the Suez Canal in violation of the new Middle East cease-fire.

The Jerusalem Post said that because of this the government was considering postponing appointment of its delegate to the peace talks that are to open soon with U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Jarring as the go-between.

The government radio said the Soviet SAM2 and SAM3 batteries were put into place north of the Cairo-Suez road and between the Ismailia road and the Nile delta four hours after the cease-fire went into effect at midnight last Friday.

The Israeli military command refused to comment. But on Wednesday U.S. officials in Washington said the American government has received the report from Israeli sources and is investigating it.

Some Washington sources suggested movement of the missiles closer to the canal might have taken place several hours before the cease-fire went into effect and were not noted by Israeli reconnaissance until later.

Israel and Egypt meanwhile accused each other of a minor cease-fire violation.

The Israeli command said the Egyptians fired a few rifle bullets at an Israeli patrol along the canal Wednesday. A spokesman said no Israeli was wounded, and the fire was not returned.

Nixon And House Grapple Over Money Bill Vetoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and the House grappled today in an historic, arm-twisting confrontation over $22.4 billion funds for education, government agencies, veterans hospitals and small town environmental programs.

House Democrats hoped to enlist the support of Republicans in reversing the chief executive's veto of the $4.4 billion Office of Education money bill and the $18.8 billion measure funding the Department of Housing and Urban development and a score of other agencies.

Most observers gave the education bill the best chance of winning the necessary two-thirds majority needed to override a Presidential veto. The larger measure appeared to have less support.

House leaders ordered roll-call votes on the two spurned bills as the first order of business today.

Never before has the House scheduled votes on two major vetoes in one day.

Herbert G. Klein, communications director for the administration, told Republican governors Wednesday the vetoes will pay dividends during the November campaigns.

Klein told Republicans at the National Governors Conference meeting at Land of the Ozarks, Mo., "It was essential that the President do it."

But Democrat Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri, new chairman of the conference, said the vetoes are designed to blame Congress for inflation.

The two bills provide almost $1 billion more than the President requested for the current fiscal year, a sum the President said was "the kind of big spending that would drive up prices or demand higher taxes."

The President said his veto of the two bills was "painful."

His action also pained many Republicans seeking reelection. Many have in their districts projects and programs financed by the bills.

Making it tougher is the fact that a three-week House recess starts tomorrow, and most members have been looking forward to going home to cultivate the voters.

Democratic leaders displayed no signs of political jitters and publicly welcomed the challenge thrown at them by the President.

They figured they had little to lose and everything to gain by voting for popular domestic programs at a time when billions are being spent on the war in Vietnam.

Lucasville Man Killed In Gun Fight

Local State Patrolman Slays Father's Killer

The father of a local Ohio Highway Patrol officer and a Kentucky man wanted for murder were killed Wednesday in a gunfight at a boat dock on the Blood River section of Kentucky Lake.

Kentucky authorities said Jackie Boyd, 24, was shot to death by vacationing Ohio Highway Patrolman Samuel Hamblin after Boyd had fatally wounded Hamblin's father Luther, 56.

A third man was wounded in the ankle, apparently by Boyd, Kentucky State Police Capt. Marvin Monroe said.

The Galloway County, Ky., coroner has scheduled an inquest in the deaths.

Monroe said Luther Hamblin of Lucasville, Ohio, was killed by a single shot. He said Boyd, of Calloway County, Ky., was shot a number of times by Samuel Hamblin.

Monroe said the shooting began after Boyd, who was being sought in the Sunday slaying of another Galloway County man, came up to the Hamblins and, gun drawn, demanded the Hamblin's car.

Samuel Hamblin, 29, has been assigned to the Circleville post since August, 1968.

Saxbe And Young Both Against ABM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio Senators Stephen M. Young, a Democrat, and William B. Saxbe, a Republican, both voted with the minority Wednesday as the Senate rejected two amendments to curtail the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system.

One amendment, defeated 52-47, would have forbidden the spending of $322 million to expand the ABM to two new sites. The other, rejected 62-33, would have limited spending on the Safeguard to research and development.

Harold Simmons, owner of Harold's Radio Corp., a Boston discount house, says that "about two or three months ago bill payments slowed up and so did business."

In Los Angeles, another city affected by layoffs in the aerospace industry, Ray O'Brien, a Bank of America vice president in charge of loan administration, says: "We have noticed a moderate increase in the number of delinquencies—people who haven't made payments on a loan in about 30 days. We've noticed this increase over the last 12 months."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frustrated federal officials and the railroad industry are searching for ways to eliminate the annual boxcar shortage when the peak shipping season begins next month.

A poll of shippers indicates no shortage of boxcars now but no one is betting the trend will continue.

Three rail cars go east for each one that moves west, and the problem shows up when the Oregon lumberman, the Kansas wheat grower and the New England utility demand service at the same time.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has drawn a new schedule of penalties for use against shippers who allow cars to stand idle. This has worked only partially in the past, and the ICC has had to send strings of empty cars westward to balance up things.

Several alternatives have been proposed but most would cost the taxpayer.

It's not a new problem. A complaint from the farmers of the Dakotas was the first order of business for the ICC in 1897.

"And they're still complaining," an exasperated Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., told the Federal Railroad Administration at a hearing recently.

"The frustration is so great in Congress," says Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., "that we have

Reception Plans Set By Legion

Local Legionnaires of Hall-Adkins Post 134 have completed plans for the Saturday reception and dinner-dance in honor of post member Roger L. Smith, 1970-71 Commander of The American Legion's Department of Ohio.

Commander Smith started his Legion career with membership in Post 417, Mt. Sterling, following his discharge from the United States Navy.

He then transferred to Post 134 where he held many offices and was a member of the famed "Gladiators" competing Drum and Bugle Corps.

Smith continued his Legion career by being commander of the Seventh District consisting of Adams, Ross, Scioto, Pike, Lawrence, Fayette, Highland, and Pickaway Counties. He is the first in this district to ever hold the high office of State Commander.

Committee co-chairmen Mrs. Eleanor Price and MacDonald Schumm have announced the program is completed with Mayor M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner accepting an invitation as the evening speaker.

Merle Brady, past national executive committee member of Van Wert, will serve as the master of ceremonies. The Luther Bolen Band will furnish the musical arrangements for the dance. There are a limited number of tickets still available.

Porno Panel Stands Firm On Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The President's Commission on Pornography reportedly is sticking to its recommendations for liberalized obscenity laws despite President Nixon's warning he would oppose them.

The 18-member commission took no final votes at meetings Tuesday and Wednesday, sources said, but continued to edit its draft report without making substantial changes.

The major draft recommendations are repeal of all U.S. laws against showing and selling pornographic films, books and other erotica to adults, and enactment of laws protecting children from exposure to such material.

The recommendations, which would make U.S. laws nearly as liberal as Denmark's, are based on a tentative finding that pornography does not cause sex crimes and is not harmful to children.

The White House said Tuesday "it is safe to predict" President Nixon would oppose such recommendations.

At the same time, the White House washed its hands of the draft report and press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler pointed out that the commission members had been appointed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson, not Nixon.

The draft report recommends protection of adults from forced exposure to pornography with laws against its public display and use in unsolicited mail advertisements.

Mansfield and Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., are calling for abolition of the ICC unless the agency finds a solution to the shortage.

A check of Kansas wheat shippers, Oregon lumber companies and utilities in New England indicates no shortage of boxcars at this point—but the peak season begins Sept. 1.

The only legislative solution under consideration is a proposal by Pearson to give the Defense Department $120 million

Postal Reform Changes Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a stroke of the President's pen and a splash of blue paint, the government has junked a couple of postal traditions dating back to Benjamin Franklin, father of the U.S. mails.

First, there was President Nixon Wednesday, beaming as he signed the post office reform bill into law.

Among other things, the measure buries the practice of patronage appointments—which all started, some say, when Franklin named his wife's relatives to be postmasters.

Then, amid more handshaking and approving smiles, Postmaster General Winton Blount unfurled a new seal, a dark blue, modern-art rendition of a bald eagle, to replace the horseback rider who symbolized the service since 1837.

Contrary to a misconception that he belonged to the Pony Express, the rider on the old seal was based on a crude woodcut made by Franklin, said Blount.

The streamlined new emblem has the nearly-extinct national bird poised for flight on a white field, above bold red and blue bars framing the words "U.S. Mail."

The seal, like the old one, will be worn by all postal employees—who will get completely new uniforms within two years that

Set Testimony In Ohio GI's Murder Trial

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Testimony is slated to begin Friday in the murder trial of Marine PFC Samuel G. Green, Jr., 18, of Cleveland, Ohio, charged in the deaths of 16 Vietnamese civilians last Feb. 19.

A jury of three officers and two senior enlisted men was selected Thursday to hear the case against Green, one of four young Marines charged in the slayings in a village southwest of here. All were members of a nighttime "killer team" ambush patrol.

As the jury was organized, the military judge, Lt. Col. Paul St. Amour, of Bedford, Mass., also denied a defense motion for a change of venue.

The charge against Green is unpremeditated murder, which carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

Pacification Program Said Prime Target

SAIGON (AP) — Heavy fighting in which more than 300 North Vietnamese were reported killed indicated today that the enemy is trying to launch an offensive against the pacification program in the populous lowlands of South Vietnam's two northernmost provinces.

One battle still raged at dusk with North Vietnamese troops holed up in villages along the French Indochina war's "Street without Joy."

Field reports said 17 South Vietnamese troops had been killed and 44 wounded. Among the dead was Maj. Nguyen Van Van, commander of Fire Base O'Reilly, killed in a mortar attack.

American planes and helicopter gunships flew some of the heaviest strikes of the war.

At stake is the pacification operation which over the past year has brought security to the villages in the lowlands of Quang Tri and Thua Thien provinces.

Some of the villages were reported damaged, and hundreds of refugees fled as fighting broke out. There was no estimate of civilian casualties.

The heaviest fighting broke out in a string of villages along the coastal strip French soldiers named "the Street without Joy" in the early 1950s because of their losses there.

Intelligence officers said nearly two battalions of about 700 North Vietnamese filtered through allied defensive lines in the foothills to the west and reassembled after they reached the coastal region at points ranging from four to 12 miles southeast of Quang Tri City.

Captured North Vietnamese documents said the goal was to "liberate people in the lowlands," one intelligence officer said.

Fighting broke out at 7 a.m. Wednesday, and military spokesmen said 188 North Vietnamese had been killed by late this afternoon, some of them by American helicopter gunships firing rockets and machine guns.

The coastal villages are guarded by a chain of artillery and patrol bases in the foothills to the west. Their mission is to choke off the flow of enemy troops and supplies toward the coast and keep large-scale fighting out of the villages.

Brandt Asks Red Chief To Visit

MOSCOW (AP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt flew home to Bonn today after signing a nonaggression treaty with the Soviet Union and inviting Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin to visit West Germany.

A government spokesman in Bonn said the chancellor had scheduled a meeting with key government ministers upon his return to report on his talks with Kremlin leaders.

A West German spokesman said Kosygin has accepted in principle an invitation to visit Bonn extended by Brandt at their final meeting today. But no date was set for the visit.

Brandt told newsmen shortly before his departure from Moscow that West German views on Berlin were expressed "calmly and clearly" in his second meeting with Kosygin which lasted 1 hour and three-quarters.

The chancellor expressed belief the Soviet side fully understands that progress toward a satisfactory settlement on Berlin would provide favorable conditions for development of cooperation between the two countries.

Brandt said the talks had been conducted in a relaxed atmosphere without pressure or sharpness. He noted also there was no effort to interfere with either country's relations with its allies.

One battle still raged at dusk with North Vietnamese troops holed up in villages along the French Indochina war's "Street without Joy."

Field reports said 17 South Vietnamese troops had been killed and 44 wounded. Among the dead was Maj. Nguyen Van Van, commander of Fire Base O'Reilly, killed in a mortar attack.

American planes and helicopter gunships flew some of the heaviest strikes of the war.

At stake is the pacification operation which over the past year has brought security to the villages in the lowlands of Quang Tri and Thua Thien provinces.

Some of the villages were reported damaged, and hundreds of refugees fled as fighting broke out. There was no estimate of civilian casualties.

The heaviest fighting broke out in a string of villages along the coastal strip French soldiers named "the Street without Joy" in the early 1950s because of their losses there.

Intelligence officers said nearly two battalions of about 700 North Vietnamese filtered through allied defensive lines in the foothills to the west and reassembled after they reached the coastal region at points ranging from four to 12 miles southeast of Quang Tri City.

Captured North Vietnamese documents said the goal was to "liberate people in the lowlands," one intelligence officer said.

Fighting broke out at 7 a.m. Wednesday, and military spokesmen said 188 North Vietnamese had been killed by late this afternoon, some of them by American helicopter gunships firing rockets and machine guns.

The coastal villages are guarded by a chain of artillery and patrol bases in the foothills to the west. Their mission is to choke off the flow of enemy troops and supplies toward the coast and keep large-scale fighting out of the villages.

Brandt Asks Red Chief To Visit

MOSCOW (AP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt flew home to Bonn today after signing a nonaggression treaty with the Soviet Union and inviting Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin to visit West Germany.

A government spokesman in Bonn said the chancellor had scheduled a meeting with key government ministers upon his return to report on his talks with Kremlin leaders.

A West German spokesman said Kosygin has accepted in principle an invitation to visit Bonn extended by Brandt at their final meeting today. But no date was set for the visit.

Brandt told newsmen shortly before his departure from Moscow that West German views on Berlin were expressed "calmly and clearly" in his second meeting with Kosygin which lasted 1 hour and three-quarters.

The chancellor expressed belief the Soviet side fully understands that progress toward a satisfactory settlement on Berlin would provide favorable conditions for development of cooperation between the two countries.

Brandt said the talks had been conducted in a relaxed atmosphere without pressure or sharpness. He noted also there was no effort to interfere with either country's relations with its allies.

AC Boosters Plan Holiday Celebration

The Athletic Booster Club of Amanda-Clearcreek High School will sponsor an Amanda Clearcreek Labor Day celebration and invite participation from all residents in the school district.

The holiday event will feature a parade, a Little Miss and Big Miss contest, Pie and Cake contest and a Teen Dance.

Contestants for the "Little Miss" title must be a first grade or kindergarten student. Those who qualify may enter the contest by giving their name, age, grade, school and parents' name, address and phone number on a post card. The information should be sent to Mrs. Bob Lands, Route 1, Stoutsville.

Judging will be held following the morning parade in which all Little Miss contestants will participate.

"Big Miss" contestants must be a student in grades 9-12 of the school district. To enter the contest, she should supply the same information as required for "Little Miss" contestants and mail to Mrs. Martin McHale, Route 1, Amanda or Mrs. Kenneth Good, Box 27, Stoutsville. The contest will be judged at 6 p.m.

All entries must be received by Sept. 1.

The homemakers of the Amanda-Clearcreek School district are invited to compete for prizes in the Pie and Cake contest. Entries should be taken to the Home Ec room of the school by 9 a.m. on Labor Day. Judging will follow and winners will ride in the parade scheduled for 10 a.m.

The one-day celebration will be climaxed at a Teen Dance, 8-10 p.m. in the high school gym with a Fairfield Union band providing the music.

Israel . . .

Cairo said the Israelis broke the cease-fire Sunday by firing a few shots at a soldier standing guard on the canal. He said the soldier was not hurt. An Israeli spokesman denied the accusation, saying, "We haven't shot even one bullet on the canal since the cease-fire."

An Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman scored the Greek government for releasing seven Palestinian commandos from jail in exchange for 53 passengers aboard a hijacked Greek airliner last month.

The seven terrorists were flown to Cairo early today on a plane chartered by the International Red Cross. The Greek government said an Arab diplomat in Athens had assured that "Greek soil and Greek interests in general will never in the future be used for illegal actions by Arab commandos." Neither the diplomat nor his country was named.

"It's blackmail," said an Israeli spokesman. He repeated his government's stand that the deal to release the seven was made "under duress," and that the Greeks were not "morally bound" to carry it out.

The seven included two men convicted of machine gunning an Israeli airliner and killing one of its passengers at the Athens airport, two convicted of a hand grenade attack on an El Al office, resulting in the death of a Greek boy, and two men and a woman arrested as they prepared to hijack a Trans World Airlines plane.

The Greek government said a "pardon decree" was issued to effect the release of the seven. But it said this decree was a formality and did not constitute an absolution of guilt.

Contributions Are Probed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Asst. Prosecutor John Peck will study political campaign contributions while a special grand jury probing state investment practices takes a long weekend recess.

Peck said he had asked Secretary of State Ted Brown's office for expense reports of Ohio committees that contributed to President Nixon's campaign and all campaign expenses of Sen. William B. Saxbe, Democratic gubernatorial nominee John J. Gilligan and all Republican statewide primary candidates.

"I want to see who contributed to the campaign for those individuals and if anything has been left unpaid," Peck said. He added he would present "any pertinent evidence to a special grand jury" if he found any discrepancies. He did not elaborate.

The grand jury, which is investigating loans made by the school Employees Retirement System and the state treasurer's office, recessed Wednesday until Monday morning.

Stock List Goes Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — After slumbering most of the week the stock market moved into a slow but sure decline today in quiet trading.

At noon the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 2.83 points to 708.31.

Declines steadily widened their lead over advances to almost 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts admitted they found the market's behavior perplexing. The usually slow trading in August has been deepened this year by investor uncertainty and hesitancy to act in the face of the jumbled economic and international pictures.

Whatever decisive course the market takes probably will have to await the fall, they said. Oils, rails, chemicals, and rubber issues were off. Aircrafts were unchanged. All other stock categories were mixed.

Burial Of Woman In Lima Postponed

LIMA, Ohio (AP)—Burial of Christine Ricks, whose death triggered racial disorders here last week, was postponed again Wednesday. Morticians said out-of-town relatives had not arrived yet to view the body.

Funeral services were held Monday for Mrs. Ricks, killed in a gunfight with police Aug. 5. Disturbances that followed the shooting resulted in the stationing of National Guardsmen here for five days.

WATER COOLER—This 425-foot water cooling tower, first of two, has been completed at the Sacramento, Calif., Municipal Utility District's Rancho Seco nuclear generating plant. It is taller than a 42-story building and will cool hot water flowing at a rate of 500,000 gallons a minute by the natural draft rising through 325-foot-diameter shafts. The $222 million project is expected to be in service by 1973.

Firearms Use In Slayings Jumps, FBI Report Shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The use of pistols, rifles and shot-guns by Americans to kill or maim other Americans has increased dramatically since 1964, the Federal Bureau of Investigation says.

Two out of every three murder victims in 1969 were gunned down and one out of every four assaults involved a firearm, the FBI reported Wednesday in crime statistics for the past calendar year.

Murders and nonnegligent manslaughters claimed a total of 14,590 lives—including those of 86 law enforcement officers—in the United States during 1969, a 7 per cent increase over calendar year 1968.

Aggravated assaults, running the gamut from nonfatal shootings to sluggings, totaled 306,420 during 1969, up 8.5 per cent over 1968.

Guns were used in 65 per cent of the murders and 34 per cent of the aggravated assaults, the FBI said. Between 1964 and 1969, use of guns in murders went up 80 per cent and use of guns in assaults went up 143 per cent, the FBI said.

There were 178,500 armed robberies in 1969, up 14 per cent over 1968. Two out of every three victims looked into the barrel of a gun as they surrendered their money or valuables, the FBI said. All armed robbery rose 157 per cent between 1964 and 1969.

The type of firearm used in 51 per cent of last year's murders was a handgun or pistol, the FBI said. Rifles were used in 6 per cent of the murders and shotguns in 8 per cent.

As the rate of violent crimes goes up—11 per cent in 1969 and 130 per cent in the last decade—so, apparently, have gun sales.

FBI estimates, not included in the annual report released Wednesday but quoted in the current issue of Newsweek Magazine, place the number of privately owned firearms at 90 million, or nearly one and one half for each of the 63 million U.S. households.

Part of the buildup, ironically, stems from passage of the Gun Control Act of 1968. The act's ban on importation of foreign military or non-sport firearms has resulted in a proliferation of U.S.-manufactured inexpensive, small-caliber handguns.

According to testimony by Asst. Deputy Atty. Gen. Donald E. Santarelli, before the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency, U.S. production of such weapons jumped from 60,000 in 1968 to 700,000 in 1969, after the act's passage.

ABM Foes Handed Defeat, But See Victory Next Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foes of President Nixon's Safeguard antiballistic missile system, claiming they may have found the formula for victory in the ashes of two Senate defeats, will mount a final drive next week to restrict expansion of the system.

But Safeguard supporters, who masterminded the defeat of a bid to carve $322 million and two ABM sites from the program, said they have the votes to withstand any challenge.

The third effort will come on an amendment by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., to block construction of two additional ABM sites. The funds instead would be spent to improve the two existing sites.

Brooke said he would call his amendment up for a vote next Wednesday.

"I think the opposition to ABM has hit its peak and that we can now move on to other things," said Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., floor manager of the bill that includes expansion of Safeguard to two new sites.

The Senate rejected Wednesday by a 62-32 margin a bid by Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, to kill all Safeguard expansion funds except those for research and development.

Then, by a far-slimmer 52-47 margin, it ended a drive to cut $322 million from the President's Safeguard budget and restrict the system to the two sites approved last year. The amendment was sponsored by Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

Brooke's proposal would allow funds now earmarked for geographical expansion of the system to sites in Missouri and Wyoming to be used to improve sites already authorized in Montana and North Dakota. The improvements specifically include the Safeguard radars which have been hotly scored as vulnerable to attack and relatively easy to deceive by sophisticated decoy devices.

"But the important thing is that my amendment would limit the degree to which they could expand the Safeguard system and would confine them to the real estate they have right now," Brooke said.

Earlier, Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., a leading Safeguard backer, said the White House was opposed to all amendment, including Brooke's, and warned that a vote for any restrictive amendment would be counted as a vote hostile to President Nixon.

Protein Hunt Conducted By Scientists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists are rummaging through trash cans, sifting the seas and harvesting fungi and germs in the quest for cheap, plentiful sources of protein, the body's most important tissue builder.

Their search, reported at the Third International Congress on Food Science and Technology now underway here, is fueled by the realization that in the standing-room-only world of the future—and in already crowded countries—space is at a premium for the animals which provide men with protein.

Protein deficiency is a vital factor in the 10,000 deaths the United Nations estimates occur daily from hunger or malnutrition.

In the United States, according to an Agriculture Department survey, most people get more than enough protein. North Americans on the average eat 66 grams of animal protein a person per day, supplemented by milk, eggs and cereals.

But the individual consumption of animal protein in the Near East averages 14 grams, in Africa 11 grams and in Asia 8 grams.

It is in the animal-poor countries where scientists are pressing hardest to extract the proteins directly from grasses, grains and other substances.

TODAY In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signed a $3.2 billion bill providing an 11 per cent increase in disability benefits to veterans.

The measure is $218 million more than Nixon asked, and he said Wednesday he would offset the overflow by ordering reductions in spending by several agencies, including the Atomic Energy Commission.

The President said "Benefits for our two million disabled veterans have lagged behind the rise in the cost of living. This bill will allow them to catch up."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee wants to slow down the drive for action on the House-approved constitutional amendment to guarantee equal rights to women.

The committee approved Wednesday a motion by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., to ask the Senate leadership to permit the panel to conduct hearings on the amendment.

The motion stipulated that the committee would act by Sept. 19.

A dissenting member, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., declared that "further hearings are totally unnecessary."

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., earlier had obtained unanimous consent of the Senate to have the measure bypass the committee.

The amendment already has 83 Senate sponsors.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a bill which would give President Nixon temporary authority to impose wage, price and rent controls. Sen. Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, charged that the action Wednesday was designed purely to embarrass the President.

"This is entirely political," said Bennett. "It is very interesting that the authority expires in six months—or right after the November elections."

"The President has made it entirely clear he does not believe such controls are the way to meet the inflation problem, and that he has no intention of using them."

Oil Company Sued Over Pollution Claim
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A suburban Garfield Heights woman Wednesday sued the Ashland Oil & Refining Co. for $50,000 damages alleging that the firm had polluted a creek which harmed her health.

Arlene Hunley claimed in her Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court suit that the firm's storage and refining terminal at 4425 E. 146th St. has, for the last two years, been discharging "oil and other petroleum products and noxious and deleterious substances" into a creek which runs along her property.

The suit alleges that the substances stagnate in the creek water, "causing noxious fumes and odors" and allegedly brought on "eye injuries, intestinal disorders, nausea, sleeplessness and recurring headaches."

ABM Foes Handed Defeat, But See Victory Next Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foes of President Nixon's Safeguard antiballistic missile system, claiming they may have found the formula for victory in the ashes of two Senate defeats, will mount a final drive next week to restrict expansion of the system.

But Safeguard supporters, who masterminded the defeat of a bid to carve $322 million and two ABM sites from the program, said they have the votes to withstand any challenge.

The third effort will come on an amendment by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., to block construction of two additional ABM sites. The funds instead would be spent to improve the two existing sites.

Brooke said he would call his amendment up for a vote next Wednesday.

"I think the opposition to ABM has hit its peak and 'hat we can now move on to other things,'" said Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., floor manager of the bill that includes expansion of Safeguard to two new sites.

The Senate rejected Wednesday by a 62-32 margin a bid by Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, to kill all Safeguard expansion funds except those for research and development.

Then, by a far-slimmer 52-47 margin it ended a drive to cut $322 million from the President's Safeguard budget and restrict the system to the two sites approved last year. The amendment was sponsored by Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Kv., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

Brooke's proposal would allow funds now earmarked for geographical expansion of the system to sites in Missouri and Wyoming to be used to improve sites already authorized in Montana and North Dakota.

Gas Loading Continues

SUNNY POINT, N.C. (AP) — Longshoremen today continue loading vaults of deadly nerve gas aboard a rusting Liberty ship that the Army wants to sink in the Atlantic Ocean next Tuesday.

Rain delayed work nearly three hours Wednesday and only 53 of the 418 concrete-and-steel coffins were hoisted aboard the 442-foot Le Baron Russell Briggs, which was brought out of mothballs last week.

The Army had hoped to load 80 vaults Wednesday. Officials said if there was no additional rain delay the job should be completed on schedule Friday.

Commercial tugs are to begin Sunday towing the Briggs toward a point 283 miles east of Cape Kennedy, Fla. There, on Tuesday, plans are for seven valve ports to be opened and the hulk to sink slowly in 16,000 feet of water, in an area where the Army has scuttled obsolete bombs and munitions for years.

In Washington Wednesday, Judge June L. Green of U.S. District Court ordered hearings today on a suit by Florida Gov. Claude Kirk and the Environmental Defense Fund to block the dumping. They seek a temporary restraining order until the Army demonstrates in court that it has chosen the safest possible location and that all possible environmental consequences have been considered.

Col. Jack Osick, deputy director of chemical and nuclear operations for the Army chief of staff, said: "If the court grants the injunction, we would look to the courts to tell us how to dispose of this dangerous material."

Osick said the area off Florida was selected by the National Academy of Sciences after that body determined that the nerve gas was in an unstable condition requiring quick disposal.

The improvements specifically include the Safeguard radars which have been hotly scored as vulnerable to attack and relatively easy to deceive by sophisticated decoy devices.

"But the important thing is that my amendment would limit the degree to which they could expand the Safeguard system and would confine them to the real estate they have right now," Brooke said.

Earlier, Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., a leading Safeguard backer, said the White House was opposed to all amendment, including Brooke's, and warned that a vote for any restrictive amendment would be counted as a vote hostile to President Nixon.

Protein Hunt Conducted By Scientists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists are rummaging through trash cans, sifting the seas and harvesting fungi and germs in the quest for cheap, plentiful sources of protein, the body's most important tissue builder.

Their search, reported at the Third International Congress on Food Science and Technology now underway here, is fueled by the realization that in the standing-room-only world of the future—and in already crowded countries—space is at a premium for the animals which provide men with protein.

Protein deficiency is a vital factor in the 10,000 deaths the United Nations estimates occur daily from hunger or malnutrition.

In the United States, according to an Agriculture Department survey, most people get more than enough protein. North Americans on the average eat 66 grams of animal protein a person per day, supplemented by milk, eggs and cereals.

But the individual consumption of animal protein in the Near East averages 14 grams, in Africa 11 grams and in Asia 8 grams.

It is in the animal-poor countries where scientists are pressing hardest to extract the proteins directly from grasses, grains and other substances.

Westfall Counselor Requests Release

County Superintendent Judson Lannan reported a new vacancy in the Westfall High School faculty today.

John Meighan, high school guidance counselor at Westfall, submitted his resignation Wednesday to high school principal Donald Shearer. The district Board of Education is expected to take action on the resignation at their regular session Monday evening.

Local Police Check Two Larceny Cases

Circleville Police are investigating two incidents of petit larceny reported this morning.

Frank Smallwood, 838 Clinton St., reported to police that someone had entered his house and taken $7 from his desk.

Martha Gulick, 414 N. Scioto St., reported the theft of $25 worth of towels from a laundromat on W. Main St. while she was washing.

IRS Shies From Integration Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says it will examine the motivation of private tax-exempt academies springing up across the South in the wake of public school desegregation—but only if formal complaints are made.

But until there are complaints, IRS Commissioner Randolph W. Thrower said today, the agency will assume the school is abiding by the pledge it made to win a tax exemption —admission of pupils without regard to race or religion. Thrower testified before Sen. Walter F. Mondale's Select Equal Educational Opportunity Committee.

Mondale has been hearing complaints from educators and civil rights officials that the private schools are coming up like cotton, and no one in the federal government is monitoring them to insure they are operating without discrimination.

Arrest Priest For Trip To Prison

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — The Rev. Daniel Berrigan, found by FBI agents after four months as a fugitive from a three-year prison term for destroying draft records in Maryland, is in custody awaiting transfer to a federal penitentiary.

"They had us surrounded," attorney William Stringfellow said of the dozen FBI agents who apprehended the Roman Catholic priest Tuesday on Block Island at a house owned by Stringfellow and poet Anthony Towne.

The agents found the 49-year-old Jesuit priest in the front room.

Father Berrigan had made several public appearances before peace groups and given some interviews to news media since going underground in April rather than surrender for the prison term imposed on him April 9.

He had lost all appeals from his sentence but said he wanted to show authorities "they can no longer lock people up on their order."

In Baltimore Tuesday night, about 40 persons demonstrated peacefully but loudly outside offices of the Catholic archdiocese to protest the arrest.

Father Berrigan was one of the "Catonville Nine," who were convicted of destroying draft records in Catonsville, Md., on May 17, 1968, as a protest of the war in Vietnam.

Decline In Science

Some misguided individual who look upon technology and science as twin evils responsible for at least part of what is wrong with society will not be dismayed to learn that science and science-related research are facing unaccustomed hard times in the nation's laboratories and on the campuses.

The reasons for the difficulties are easily traceable. Primarily, they stem from curtailment in federal grants, reaching all the way from cutbacks in Department of Defense research appropriations to lower grants from such institutions as the National Institutes of Health and the National Science Foundation.

Simultaneously, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is retrenching, and that also includes a reduction in funds available for research and traineeship programs. For the first time in a quarter century, major scientific teams and research institutes are in danger of being broken up for lack of funding.

The paradox in this situation is that these are the very talents needed to correct many contemporary ills. Who but a scientist is going to be able to contribute a solution to the problems of ecology? Who but an engineer can tackle the muddled transportation industry and come up with a workable system?

Challenges for science and engineering have never been greater. This is a poor time to be retrenching fields of creative effort which could contribute so greatly, with proper direction and priorities.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — As Abel Berland sees it, real estate developers can rebuild America if America lets them. But he isn't so sure they will receive the permission and that, he maintains, spells disaster.

Not surprisingly, Berland is a real estate man, president of the American Society of Real Estate Counselors, an elite group of 375 professionals who write C.R.E.—Counselor of Real Estates—after their names.

A construction crisis is at hand, he argues, that could erode tax bases, arrest the redevelopment of urban areas, deny good housing to those who badly need it and force up rents for apartment dwellers and office renters.

The situation arises, Berland says, because of the new tax law that greatly reduced depreciation advantages to developers, and because of steadily rising demands by the big money lenders, especially life insurance companies.

The new tax law, Berland says, has taken incentive from the developer. "He can hope for an 8 to 10 per cent return, but you can get close to that in bonds, and without risk."

He may not even reach that figure, it can be presumed, if the lending situation continues to develop as it has during the past few years. Lenders now are not content just to lend; they want a piece of the action.

Berland feels, in fact, that they want four pieces: "They demand higher interest, and ask for 3 to 4 per cent of the gross profits, a free equity position, and part of the proceeds if the development is sold."

He maintains that if this continues, "lending institutions will, in fact, end up owning most of the choice real estate in the country." The situation already is seriously limiting construction activity, he adds.

One response of developers who cannot live with such deals is to approach corporations and sell them on the idea of a development as an inflation hedge—and perhaps not incidentally, as a showcase for the company's products.

Berland believes this may be the real estate wave of the future, based on the ready acceptance by corporations of plans suggested to them by developers. The corporations have access to credit on a greater scale and on better terms than the single developer could ever hope to get.

Rising costs of land, labor and materials are forcing developers to think bigger, to put up enormous buildings in hope that costs can be cut by volume. That means more capital is needed.

In Chicago, where Berland presides over Arthur Rubloff & Co., a diversified real estate firm, some land prices have risen 500 per cent in the past decade.

Asked for an example, Berland relates how he assembled land for the new Sears, Roebuck building, projected to be the tallest in the world, at $150 a square foot. "That same land was assembled at $30 a foot a half dozen years ago."

Should the industry's problems be overcome in some unforeseen manner, the future could be a lot brighter than depicted, Berland concedes. "We are building up a demand not unlike that following World War II," he says.

Some 2.6 million housing units will be needed each year during the 1970s, for example, which is double recent rates. But perhaps an even bigger job is the development of more office space.

Chicago Heads For Murder Record

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago police department homicide unit reports the city is heading for an all-time record of more than 900 murders this year.

"We're now 92 murders ahead of this time last year," said Cmdr. John T. Cartan Jr., in predicting the highest yearly murder toll in the city's history in 1970. There were 716 murders in Chicago in 1969.

Cartan, 58, blamed "changing times" and a national trend to more violence for the sharp increase.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A HARDENED commuter didn't lose his temper until the 8:14 to Penn Station was three hours late. He had just about concluded that there would be no train at all that day when the stationmaster came out to reassure him, "Don't give up now, Dave," he advised. "That train will be along within the hour." "How can you tell?" asked the commuter. "Elementary, my dear David," chuckled the stationmaster. "Here comes the conductor's dog now."

News and sports authority Robert Considine, and a great student of the exploits and strategy of Napoleon Bonaparte, got into a heated argument one day with a convict who nominated Napoleon as the most overrated bum in history. "If he was so wonderful," he demanded of Bob, "how come he blew the big one at Waterloo?" Unruffled, Considine quickly alibied, "Bad bench."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A young married woman came to my office recently with a relatively unimportant ear condition. During the course of the next two visits she openly expressed her distress because her husband accused her of being neurotic and refused to recognize her right to be sick.

I found her to be a very stable young woman whose emotional distress caused by her husband's attitude was far worse than the pain of her ear condition.

She even intimated that her entire relationship was altered by his attitude and his accusations that she was a neurotic.

This is a pathetic lack of understanding that, in many instances, leads to the destruction of a good relationship or a good marriage. Who, in this complex world, stays unscathed and completely unneurotic? Show me the person who insists that he is entirely unneurotic and I will automatically label him as "Our Leader."

I invited the husband to come to visit me and found him to be a charming young man who had a simple problem of his own that resulted in his attitude towards his wife. He confessed that whenever she gets sick his own security is so threatened that he reacts almost like a child. His concern comes out as hostility while, in reality, it is evidence of his intense devotion.

When they understood how this complex mechanism works, there was a total reestablishment of the solid relationship that was being eroded.

This problem was a simple and fairly obvious one. Fortunately, both were able to express their feelings to me, even though I am a practicing doctor who does not specialize in psychotherapy or psychoanalysis.

It is an accepted fact that every physical problem that is brought to the attention of the doctor carries with it some emotional component. If one does not recognize this, it is almost impossible to adequately treat the total patient.

Physicians are trained to listen to the subtle expressions of their patients who usually are far more concerned about their emotions than they are about their bodies.

Patients no longer resent the suggestion that they might need some psychological help in addition to the treatment of their physical complaints.

Sometimes it takes a single visit by the shrewd interpretation by a psychotherapist to clarify a problem. Of course, deeply ingrained problems need intensive study in order to convert the maladjusted person into one who functions better, and with greater personal happiness.

Many unhappy people gain a better insight and understanding of their "right to be neurotic" for simple psychotherapy. Their horizons for happiness increase and very often their personal productivity does, too, in their jobs and in their family life.

Talk out your problems. They are probably not as complex as you think.

Space Agency's Dividends

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

If we didn't have the moon program — or Cambodia — or the military — industrial complex — we'd have lots of money to plow into the ghettos. You name the liberal politico, whether he's Mayor John Lindsay of New York, or Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, or Americans for Democratic Action's Joe Duffey of Connecticut and this is what the man is saying. There isn't a hint that any of them has even pondered the roundaboutness of production, or the fact that, in economic life, one thing feeds another. The rehabilitation of ghettos depends on taxes, and taxes depend on an economic system that is functioning on at least eight cylinders. You just don't get money for one thing by shutting down something else.

So let's talk about the recently much-maligned space program, for instance. In Joe Duffey's Connecticut it has resulted in a double-action advantage to workers in the manufacturing city of Remington Shaver Division, a subsidiary of Sperry Rand Corporation, is branching out into a number of things such as housewares. Sperry Rand, as is well known, has been deep in space projects, manufacturing components for moon capsules that require the most exacting sort of knowledge of the heat characteristics of exotic metals. Well, the space program may not be doing so well if the present "save - the - money - for - the-ghettos" attitude spreads. But the time that Sperry Rand has spent on space projects is going to reap big dividends simply because there is such a thing in the world as "synergy," or the combined action of things to produce something else.

To give one example, the Remington division of Sperry Rand has found that exotic metals from a space capsule can be used to create houseware products that will retain their heat for 45 minutes or longer without being attached to an electrical outlet. What this will do for the housewife who wants a cordless serving dish, or a portable thermal unit to poach or steam foods, is quite obvious. It will also keep workers at work — and keep people out of the ghettos — as the space program dwindles.

Let us hope, however, that the space program doesn't die away to nothing, or the next burst of "synergistic" energy just won't happen.

My feeling is that the liberal politicians who reduce economics to a simple "either - or" business of the "military - industrial complex versus ghetto rehabilitation" must have one-cylinder minds. This is the most charitable explanation of the platform behavior of the Messrs. Lindsay, McGovern, Duffey and Company. (If they actually know what they are doing, one would have to say they are being demagogues, so they give them the benefit of the doubt.) Not every politician, however, is guilty of cowering on one cylinder.

Connecticut's Representative Lowell Weicker, for instance, appeared recently before a special U.S. Senate subcommittee hearing at Kings Point, N. Y., to suggest that the space program had developed tools which might be used to clean up Long Island Sound or any other polluted body of water. He told about a recent overflight of the New York and Connecticut coastline by representatives of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). The NASA people photographed the water and the land with special sensitive infra-red film which had been developed by space technologists. When interpreted by Fred Ruggles of the U.S. Geological Service, the photos showed the buildup of pollution patterns and the movement of silt in the increasingly contaminated coastal waters.

Dr. John Denoyer of NASA's Earth Observation Division told the Senate subcommittee that the Space Agency had only barely scratched the surface in providing tools for fighting pollution. It has developed sensors that can be improved to where they will pinpoint the exact origins of contamination.

This is something for the Messrs. Lindsay, McGovern, Duffey and Company to chew on. But do we hear the sound of any clamping of teeth? Not on your life; the average Leftist politician, who is always criticizing the likes of Senator Barry Goldwater for offering "simplistic" solutions, is really as simplistic in his approach to live as any aborigine who thinks sex and childbirth are entirely separate phenomena.

Education Cash May Be Used For Clothing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal education money can be spent to clothe needy school children but it is up to the states to decide whether payments should go directly to parents, says an Education Department official.

Following a noisy two-hour session during which welfare-rights representatives pressed their demands for direct payments, Richard L. Fairley said Tuesday the law allows funds for clothing under circumstances "where these clothes are needed."

But Fairley, acting director of the department's compensatory education division, added that federal officials "will leave the criteria up to the states" on the method of payment.

At issue is a move by a welfare rights group in Providence, R.I., for a clothing allowance of $48 per child for 2,000 children.

The group wants such education aid funds to be made directly to the parents.

Decline In Science

Some misguided individual who look upon technology and science as twin evils responsible for at least part of what is wrong with society will not be dismayed to learn that science and science-related research are facing unaccustomed hard times in the nation's laboratories and on the campuses.

The reasons for the difficulties are easily traceable. Primarily, they stem from curtailment in federal grants, reaching all the way from cutbacks in Department of Defense research appropriations to lower grants from such institutions as the National Institutes of Health and the National Science Foundation.

Simultaneously, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is retrenching, and that also includes a reduction in funds available for research and traineeship programs. For the first time in a quarter century, major scientific teams and research institutes are in danger of being broken up for lack of funding.

The paradox in this situation is that these are the very talents needed to correct many contemporary ills. Who but a scientist is going to be able to contribute a solution to the problems of ecology? Who but an engineer can tackle the muddled transportation industry and come up with a workable system?

Challenges for science and engineering have never been greater. This is a poor time to be retrenching fields of creative effort which could contribute so greatly, with proper direction and priorities.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — As Abel Berland sees it, real estate developers can rebuild America if America lets them. But he isn't so sure they will receive the permission and that, he maintains, spells disaster.

Not surprisingly, Berland is a real estate man, president of the American Society of Real Estate Counselors, an elite group of 375 professionals who write C.R.E.—Counselor of Real Estates—after their names.

A construction crisis is at hand, he argues, that could erode tax bases, arrest the redevelopment of urban areas, deny good housing to those who badly need it and force up rents for apartment dwellers and office renters.

The situation arises, Berland says, because of the new tax law that greatly reduced depreciation advantages to developers, and because of steadily rising demands by the big money lenders, especially life insurance companies.

The new tax law, Berland says, has taken incentive from the developer. "He can hope for an 8 to 10 per cent return, but you can get close to that in bonds, and without risk."

He may not even reach that figure, it can be presumed, if the lending situation continues to develop as it has during the past few years. Lenders now are not content just to lend; they want a piece of the action.

Berland feels, in fact, that they want four pieces: "They demand higher interest, and ask for 3 to 4 per cent of the gross profits, a free equity position, and part of the proceeds if the development is sold."

He maintains that if this continues, "lending institutions will, in fact, end up owning most of the choice real estate in the country." The situation already is seriously limiting construction activity, he adds.

One response of developers who cannot live with such deals is to approach corporations and sell them on the idea of a development as an inflation hedge—and perhaps not incidentally, as a showcase for the company's products.

Berland believes this may be the real estate wave of the future, based on the ready acceptance by corporations of plans suggested to them by developers. The corporations have access to credit on a greater scale and on better terms than the single developer could ever hope to get.

Rising costs of land, labor and materials are forcing developers to think bigger, to put up enormous buildings in hope that costs can be cut by volume. That means more capital is needed.

In Chicago, where Berland presides over Arthur Rubloff & Co., a diversified real estate firm, some land prices have risen 500 per cent in the past decade.

Asked for an example, Berland relates how he assembled land for the new Sears, Roebuck building, projected to be the tallest in the world, at $150 a square foot. "That same land was assembled at $30 a foot a half dozen years ago."

Should the industry's problems be overcome in some unforeseen manner, the future could be a lot brighter than depicted, Berland concedes. "We are building up a demand not unlike that following World War II," he says.

Some 2.6 million housing units will be needed each year during the 1970s, for example, which is double recent rates. But perhaps an even bigger job is the development of more office space.

Chicago Heads

For Murder Record

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago police department homicide unit reports the city is heading for an all-time record of more than 900 murders this year.

"We're now 92 murders ahead of this time last year," said Cmdr. John T. Cartan Jr., in predicting the highest yearly murder toll in the city's history in 1970. There were 716 murders in Chicago in 1969.

Cartan, 58, blamed "changing times" and a national trend to more violence for the sharp increase.

Hato's They'll Do It Every Time

Views On TV - Radio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Danny Thomas, apparently addicted to work, is coming out of television retirement again—with a bold experiment.

Will audiences that kept "Make Room for Daddy" on the air for 11 seasons respond to a frankly second-generation show? His new ABC series—with the season's most awkward title, "Danny Thomas in Make Room for Granddaddy"—was prompted by the big Nielsen ratings achieved by a couple of hour specials reuniting the family.

Thomas made TV history when, needing a change, he dropped the successful series in 1964. A Thomas-hosted anthology series was a short-lived entry a couple of years later, but Danny kept busy as a very successful producer of hit series for other stars, as nightclub entertainer and as guest star. Now, during a short break in the shooting of his series, he is off on a club date in Nevada and even finds time and energy to star in coffee commercials. It must be love, since he doesn't need the money.

Meanwhile, the Williams family of the original series soon will be back with a few added starters, notably a 6-year-old who will play the child of his married son, thus the "grand-daddy" in the title.

Marjorie Lord, who played Danny's wife for the last seven years of the original series, was persuaded—with difficulty—to return.

"I really had mixed emotions about coming back," Miss Lord said. "I was so terribly identified in the role of Danny's wife. When the series ended, I was up for some good film parts. Bob Hope did choose me to play opposite him in one, but some others wouldn't touch me because of the Thomas relationship."

Marjorie was Danny's second TV wife, Jean Hagen was his first, starting in 1953. When she left for other screen fields, Danny was a widower with two small children for one season. Then Miss Lord appeared as a widowed nurse with a child and romance flowered.

The child, 17-year-old Angela Cartwright, will represent the teen-age viewpoint this season. That she started as Danny's step-daughter has long been ignored.

Miss Lord, in her six-year TV hiatus has been successful with her first love, the stage. Among other things, she starred in a production of "Cactus Flower" and has directed a number of plays including some college productions.

Like just about every other television series in the approaching season, the new Thomas effort yearns for topical scripts which are youth-oriented. As elsewhere, he'll be going over the generation gap, the new morality and even the crusade for women's rights. No drug stories — "Danny Thomas in Make Room for Granddaddy" is supposed to be comedy, and drugs aren't funny.

Dear Abby: Fiance Practicing Without 'License'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend (I'll call him "Seymour") is a pre-med student. We plan to get married in 3 or 4 years.

Last night Seymour was over to the house and I complained of a pain in my back. (I had been bowling the night before.) Well, Seymour had me lie face down on the sofa so he could work on my back. (Naturally I took off my shirt and unhooked my bra.)

All of a sudden my mother walks in, and boy, was she ever mad! You could have heard her in Jersey. Seymour left shortly after that and my mother yelled some more, saying how terrible I was and so forth. Abby, Seymour is studying to be a doctor, which I think gives him more of a right to be working on my back than he is were a law student, right? I think my mother has an evil mind and I would like your opinion. Believe me, we weren't doing anything wrong.

ACHING BACK
DEAR ACHING: Since Seymour is not yet a doctor, he shouldn't have been working on you professionally. And since he's not yet your husband, he shouldn't have been working on you, PERIOD.

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem like a big problem to you, but if you can publish a letter from someone asking you if you ever saw a bald-headed Indian, you can publish this.

Have you ever seen a man carrying a small change purse in his pocket? My fiancée has a fit every time I take it out of my pocket to pay for something. She claims it looks sissy, and she's ashamed to be seen with me in public because of it. It's not a fancy one. IT'S JUST A PLAIN, ORDINARY BLACK CHANGE PURSE. My grandpa carried one all his life, and I have carried one for 10 years and she is the only one to ever object to it. I think it is a very convenient way to carry my change and I am not about to give it up because she says it embarrasses her. What is your opinion?

DAHLONEGRA, GA.
DEAR DAHLONEGRA: "Change purses" for gentlemen are not the most up-to-date accessory, buy many men still carry them, so if that's your preference, suit yourself. And tell your fiancée if she's too "ashamed" to be seen with you in public because you carry a change purse, the next change you make could be HER.

DEAR ABBY: Every time I see a letter in your column with no answer, I don't even bother to read it. It's usually some long drawn out sad tale of woe from a cry baby who wants to have her say. Or it's a letter from some nut which is so ridiculous, I can't imagine why you would want to print it.

I like your column best when you run somebody's problem and give them your answer—especially when you tell them off.

You are getting paid to answer people's problems, Abby, so get busy and don't goof off.

ABILENE, TEXAS
DEAR ABILENE: Please read on:

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years and have found it to be both entertaining and educational. I like the way you will print letters from readers who just want to give others the benefit of their experience. It's good to read points of view other than the one we have always held. Some of them make a lot of sense. Thank you. Keep up the good work.

Views On TV - Radio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Danny Thomas, apparently addicted to work, is coming out of television retirement again—with a bold experiment.

Will audiences that kept "Make Room for Daddy" on the air for 11 seasons respond to a frankly second-generation show? His new ABC series—with the season's most awkward title, "Danny Thomas in Make Room for Granddaddy"—was prompted by the big Nielsen ratings achieved by a couple of hour specials reuniting the family.

Thomas made TV history when, needing a change, he dropped the successful series in 1964. A Thomas-hosted anthology series was a short-lived entry a couple of years later, but Danny kept busy as a very successful producer of hit series for other stars, as nightclub entertainer and as guest star. Now, during a short break in the shooting of his series, he is off on a club date in Nevada and even finds time and energy to star in coffee commercials. It must be love, since he doesn't need the money.

Meanwhile, the Williams family of the original series soon will be back with a few added starters, notably a 6-year-old who will play the child of his married son, thus the "granddaddy" in the title.

Marjorie Lord, who played Danny's wife for the last seven years of the original series, was persuaded—with difficulty—to return.

"I really had mixed emotions about coming back," Miss Lord said. "I was so terribly identified in the role of Danny's wife. When the series ended, I was up for some good film parts. Bob Hope did choose me to play opposite him in one, but some others wouldn't touch me because of the Thomas relationship."

Marjorie was Danny's second TV wife. Jean Hagen was his first, starting in 1953. When she left for other screen fields, Danny was a widower with two small children for one season. Then Miss Lord appeared as a widowed nurse with a child and romance flowered.

The child, 17-year-old Angela Cartwright, will represent the teen-age viewpoint this season. That she started as Danny's step-daughter has long been ignored.

Miss Lord, in her six-year TV hiatus has been successful with her first love, the stage. Among other things, she starred in a production of "Cactus Flower" and has directed a number of plays including some college productions.

Like just about every other television series in the approaching season, the new Thomas effort yearns for topical scripts which are youth-oriented. As elsewhere, he'll be going over the generation gap, the new morality and even the crusade for women's rights. No drug stories — "Danny Thomas in Make Room for Granddaddy" is supposed to be comedy, and drugs aren't funny.

Tate Case Attorney Under Fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles M. Manson's attorney, in his eighth day of cross-examining the state's key witness in the Sharon Tate murder trial, has drawn the fire of the judge, other defense lawyers and Manson himself.

"Manson feels he unleashed Mr. Kanarek by letting him ask a few questions, and now he can't get the leash back on," said Ronald Hughes, attorney for one of Manson's codefendants, Leslie Van Houten.

Hughes said Manson became so disgruntled with Irving Kanarek's questioning that he decided to stop eating until Kanarek stopped cross-examining.

Sheriff's officers said Manson had milk and coffee in jail Tuesday, but no solid food.

Manson chose Kanarek to represent him after the court said he could not act as his own attorney.

Hughes said Manson also objected to Kanarek's line of questioning. Three defense attorneys have complained that Kanarek appears to be trying to "dump" three women codefendants to help Manson's case. They objected to repetitious accounts by the key witness, Linda Kasabian, of the women's roles in the killings.

On trial with Manson, 35, charged with murder-conspiracy in the slayings of the actress and six others a year ago, are Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, Susan Atkins, 21, and Miss Van Houten, 20.

Circleville Schools Plan For Opening September 1

School Board action was taken Wednesday evening on final school preparations for all Circleville students, including adoption of bus and class schedules.

The first day of school in the city, Sept. 1, will be a full day of school. Lunches will be available in the cafeteria.

Students should be in their rooms by 8:17 a.m. at the high school; 8:15 at the junior high; and 8:45 in all elementary schools. Dismissal in the afternoon will be 3:25 at CHS; 3:20 at the junior high and 2:50 for elementary school students.

Kindergarten students will follow another schedule approved by members of the Board of Education. Morning classes will take up at 8:45 and dismiss at 11:15 a.m. Afternoon sessions will be held from 12:15 p.m. to 2:45 p.m.

LUNCHES in the cafeterias will remain 35 cents for students and 40 cents for adults. Superintendent Fritz Jacobs noted that although he expected the lunch program to continue losing money this year, funds had been appropriated for this and a previous balance had not yet been depleted. Milk will be provided by Blue Ribbon Dairy at a cost of 6 3/4 cents to the board per half pint and four cents cost to students. A contract was awarded to Continental Bakery (Wonder Bread) for the school year.

A new schedule of bus routes for high school, junior high and elementary students was presented. These routes will be printed at a later date.

Jacobs noted that there was a good possibility that construction of the two new units at Atwater would be completed by the school starting date. An emergency measure was accepted by board members as a safety precaution, where two sixth grade classes will be bused to South Court Street School until the rooms are ready for use.

In completing the faculty schedule, Richard L. Neel, a graduate of Morehead State University, was hired as industrial arts instructor in the junior high.

In other action, Joyce Alkire and Louise Spain were hired as part time elementary secretaries. Trudy Yates and Carolyn Herel were granted positions as elementary librarians and Virginia Smith as secretary in the high school library. Martha Purcell and Thelma Grant were employed as study hall monitors and Barbara Frazier as part-time help in the junior high office. Ruth Rihl and Frances Elsea were approved as teachers aides at Corwin Elementary beginning Sept. 1.

TWO custodians and a library aide were also employed at Wednesday's board meeting. Jacqueline Joliff will work as elementary library aide and Cecil Sowers as night custodian at the high school beginning Sept. 1. Homer Lagore was given a custodial position in charge of the junior high gymnasium in place of Charles Lane who was accepted at the meeting, but accepted other employment.

A contract was granted in the amount of $386.50 to George Myers for 518 square feet of sidewalk to be installed at the Atwater addition.

Summer school appears to have been quite successful this year with some 300 students taking part in the program. 100 of these were enrolled in the expanded driver education program.

A total of 127 students completed the program in the elementary level. Subjects of social studies, history, math and English were studied and passed by the remaining number of junior and high school students.

The following list of substitutes was approved. In elementary, Mrs. Mary Johnson, Mrs. Lela Pontious, Bernice Immell, Florence Baker, Marilyn Ganley, Ruby Wallen, Frances Rose, Marguerite Weiler, Sophia Smith, Victoria Moffitt, Kathryn Bower, Carol Ann Bowling, Ellisa Evans, Lucille Webb, Louise Brown, Elizabeth Tolbert, Frances Pritt and Judith Stout were approved.

Castro Rejects Eaton Invitation

CHARLOTETOWN, P. E. I. (AP) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has turned down an invitation by industrialist Cyrus Eaton to attend a cattle show at this Prince Edward Island community.

Eaton, attending the show with his family, told a news conference Wednesday he had received a cable from Castro saying the invitation came too late to make travel arrangements.

Eaton said Tuesday he had invited the Cuban leader to look over some of Eastern Canada's best stock at the provincial exhibition, because Castro has embarked on a campaign to improve standards of Cuban livestock by importing breeding animals.

Secondary substitutes accepted were: Rosemary Mader, Martha Wiggins, Clara Teegardin, Carolyn Hamilton, Norton Barnes, Mary Walters, Annette Will, Margaret Mattinson, Elizabeth Musser, Eleanor Adkins, Jeanette Chilcote.

THE superintendent reported that nine more teachers had been added to the faculty of city schools over last school year's total. This was due, he reported, to increase in program, including the speech and hearing therapy, and expanding course offerings to keep up with new trends.

A report was reviewed from the recent state examination of business records. The report approved all records and accounts submitted by the clerk-treasurer, which were claimed to be in good order.

Present at the session were Jacobs, R. L. Brehmer Jr., Ruth Crist, Tom Elsea, Dale DeLong and Virgil Cress.

Strange Questions Asked Of Tate Witness

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Linda Kasabian has been asked a strange series of questions that a lawyer says were written by the three women defendants in the Sharon Tate murder trial.

The questions were posed by Ronald Hughes, the fourth and final defense attorney to cross-examine the state's key witness.

The questions included: "Are you in such a state of mind you could sit on a rock for the rest of your life and be happy? ... What is love? ... What is reality? ... Is God reality? ... What do you think of the defendants? ... Do you accept yourself?"

The 21-year-old mother of two did not have to answer most of the questions, however, because prosecution objections to them were sustained.

Later she burst into laughter for the first time in 13 days on the stand when Hughes asked her about a substance that she said she thought was catnip.

Hughes said the questions he asked before the laughter incident were framed for him by defendants Susan Atkins, 21, Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, and Leslie Van Houten, 20, who are on trial with Charles Manson on murder-conspiracy charges.

The girls giggled as their questions were asked, and just before court recessed Wednesday they were observed thumbing through transcripts of the day's testimony, presumably reading their own questions.

"The girls worked on some questions they wanted to ask and they gave them to me over the lunch hour," said Hughes, who is handling his first case. "I asked all of their questions; now I'm asking my own."

Gusts of laughter swept the courtroom at one point as Hughes produced a small plastic bag filled with a green leafy substance. The judge hastily called a bench conference. Then Hughes handed the bag to Mrs. Kasabian.

She looked puzzled and said,

"It looks like really refined marijuana with a lot of stems." Hughes asked her to smell the substance, and she burst into laughter, exclaiming, "No, I believe it's catnip."

Hughes didn't say why he gave it to the witness.

All of Hughes' questions related to drugs. He went through long lists of names, asking Mrs. Kasabian which ones she had taken.

She said she had tried marijuana, LSD, THC, methedrine, mescaline, peyote, psilocybin, morning glory seeds, amyl nitrate, the cough syrup Romilar.

Mrs. Kasabian said in direct testimony that she experimented with hallucinogenic drugs while living in a series of hippie-type communes. However, she has denied that she was on drugs during the week in August 1969 when Miss Tate and six others were slain.

Mrs. Kasabian has been granted immunity from prosecution in the slayings for telling her story. She says clan leader Manson ordered several followers—including the three women—on the killing missions.

Hughes started questioning

after Manson's lawyer, Irving Kanarek, ended his eight-day cross-examination of Mrs. Kasabian. Hughes began by asking whether the atmosphere of the Manson "family" headquarters—a movie ranch—lent an air of unreality.

Mrs. Kasabian said family members sometimes played roles such as hillbillies or cowboys and Indians. "Yeah, it was sort of a cowboy trip (life style) ... The whole trip was a delusion."

Asked if she had other "delusions," she said she did, and one of them was that Manson was Jesus Christ. Later, she said, she decided Manson was "the devil, a devilish man."

Asked what she thought of the four defendants seated at the counsel table, Mrs. Kasabian said, "I have compassion for them. I wish they were up here doing what I'm doing, telling the truth."

In ending his cross-examination, Irving Kanarek, Manson's attorney, elicited from Mrs. Kasabian the admission that she stole $5,000, then joined Manson's nomadic clan seeking refuge.

Mrs. Kasabian said she took the $5,000 in July 1969 from Charles Melton, a friend of her husband who lived with the Kasabians in the back of a truck. She said Melton received the money as an inheritance but "I thought it was for all of us."

The petite Mrs. Kasabian, who previously testified she joined Manson's clan after a rift with her husband, said she took the money after she met a Manson "family" member and discussed joining.

The witness said she gave the money to Manson clan members.

Prosecutors said no charges were filed in connection with the $5,000 and none are expected.

Mrs. Kasabian's lawyers said charges against her in the murder case probably will be formally dropped by Friday, and she will be taken to an undisclosed hotel.

A prosecutor said Mrs. Kasabian would be under heavy guard at least until she finished testifying. Then, her attorneys said, she plans to seek a legal change of her name so she and her children can live in anonymity "somewhere in the country."

CAMPING ADDED — A class B camping area has been added to the facilities at A. W. Marion State Park just off Route 22 east of Circleville. Entrance to the camping area is off Warner-Huffer Road on the east side of the lake. There are 50 sites with a picnic table and fire ring at each site.

Circleville Schools Plan For Opening September 1

School Board action was taken Wednesday evening on final school preparations for all Circleville students, including adoption of bus and class schedules.

The first day of school in the city, Sept. 1, will be a full day of school. Lunches will be available in the cafeteria.

Students should be in their rooms by 8:17 a.m. at the high school; 8:15 at the junior high; and 8:45 in all elementary schools. Dismissal in the afternoon will be 3:25 at CHS; 3:20 at the junior high and 2:50 for elementary school students.

Kindergarten students will follow another schedule approved by members of the Board of Education. Morning classes will take up at 8:45 and dismiss at 11:15 a.m. Afternoon sessions will be held from 12:15 p.m. to 2:45 p.m.

LUNCHES in the cafeterias will remain 35 cents for students and 40 cents for adults. Superintendent Fritz Jacobs noted that although he expected the lunch program to continue losing money this year, funds had been appropriated for this and a previous balance had not yet been depleted. Milk will be provided by Blue Ribbon Dairy at a cost of 6 3/4 cents to the board per half pint and four cents cost to students. A contract was awarded to Continental Bakery (Wonder Bread) for the school year.

A new schedule of bus routes for high school, junior high and elementary students was presented. These routes will be printed at a later date.

Jacobs noted that there was a good possibility that construction of the two new units at Atwater would be completed by the school starting date. An emergency measure was accepted by board members as a safety precaution, where two sixth grade classes will be bused to South Court Street School until the rooms are ready for use.

In completing the faculty schedule, Richard L. Neel, a graduate of Morehead State University, was hired as industrial arts instructor in the junior high.

In other action, Joyce Alkire and Louise Spain were hired as part time elementary secretaries. Trudy Yates and Carolyn Herel were granted positions as elementary librarians and Virginia Smith as secretary in the high school library. Martha Purcell and Thelma Grant were employed as study hall monitors and Barbara Frazier as part-time help in the junior high office. Ruth Rihl and Frances Elsea were approved as teachers aides at Corwin Elementary beginning Sept. 1.

TWO custodians and a library aide were also employed at Wednesday's board meeting. Jacqueline Jolliff will work as elementary library aide and Cecil Sowers as night custodian at the high school beginning Sept. 1. Homer Lagore was given a custodial position in charge of the junior high gymnasium in place of Charles Lane who was accepted at the meeting, but accepted other employment.

A contract was granted in the amount of $386.50 to George Myers for 518 square feet of sidewalk to be installed at the Atwater addition.

Summer school appears to have been quite successful this year with some 300 students taking part in the program. 100 of these were enrolled in the expanded driver education program.

A total of 127 students completed the program in the elementary level. Subjects of social studies, history, math and English were studied and passed by the remaining number of junior and high school students.

The following list of substitutes was approved. In elementary, Mrs. Mary Johnson, Mrs. Lela Pontious, Bernice Immell, Florence Baker, Marilyn Ganley, Ruby Wallen, Frances Rose, Marguerite Weiler, Sophia Smith, Victoria Moffitt, Kathryn Bower, Carol Ann Bowling, Ellisa Evans, Lucille Webb, Louise Brown, Elizabeth Tolbert, Frances Pritt and Judith Stout were approved.

Castro Rejects Eaton Invitation

CHARLOTETOWN, P.E.I. (AP) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has turned down an invitation by industrialist Cyrus Eaton to attend a cattle show at this Prince Edward Island community.

Eaton, attending the show with his family, told a news conference Wednesday he had received a cable from Castro saying the invitation came too late to make travel arrangements.

Eaton said Tuesday he had invited the Cuban leader to look over some of Eastern Canada's best stock at the provincial exhibition, because Castro has embarked on a campaign to improve standards of Cuban livestock by importing breeding animals.

Secondary substitutes accepted were: Rosemary Mader, Martha Wiggins, Clara Teegardin, Carolyn Hamilton, Norton Barnes, Mary Walters, Annette Will, Margaret Mattinson, Elizabeth Musser, Eleanor Adkins, Jeanette Chilcote.

THE superintendent reported that nine more teachers had been added to the faculty of city schools over last school year's total. This was due, he reported, to increase in program, including the speech and hearing therapy, and expanding course offerings to keep up with new trends.

A report was reviewed from the recent state examination of business records. The report approved all records and accounts submitted by the clerk-treasurer, which were claimed to be in good order.

Present at the session were Jacobs, R. L. Brehmer Jr., Ruth Crist, Tom Elsea, Dale DeLong and Virgil Cress.

By LINDA DEUTSCH Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Linda Kasabian has been asked a strange series of questions that a lawyer says were written by the three women defendants in the Sharon Tate murder trial.

The questions were posed by Ronald Hughes, the fourth and final defense attorney to cross-examine the state's key witness.

The questions included: "Are you in such a state of mind you could sit on a rock for the rest of your life and be happy? ... What is love? ... What is reality? ... Is God real? ... What do you think of the defendants? ... Do you accept yourself?"

The 21-year-old mother of two did not have to answer most of the questions, however, because prosecution objections to them were sustained.

Later she burst into laughter for the first time in 13 days on the stand when Hughes asked her about a substance that she said she thought was catnip.

Hughes said the questions he asked before the laughter incident were framed for him by defendants Susan Atkins, 21, Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, and Leslie Van Houten, 20, who are on trial with Charles Manson on murder-conspiracy charges.

The girls giggled as their questions were asked, and just before court recessed Wednesday they were observed thumbing through transcripts of the day's testimony, presumably reading their own questions.

"The girls worked on some questions they wanted to ask and they gave them to me over the lunch hour," said Hughes, who is handling his first case. "I asked all of their questions; now I'm asking my own."

Gusts of laughter swept the courtroom at one point as Hughes produced a small plastic bag filled with a green leafy substance. The judge hastily called a bench conference. Then Hughes handed the bag to Mrs. Kasabian.

She looked puzzled and said,

"It looks like really refined marijuana with a lot of stems." Hughes asked her to smell the substance, and she burst into laughter, exclaiming, "No, I believe it's catnip."

Hughes didn't say why he gave it to the witness.

All of Hughes' questions related to drugs. He went through long lists of names, asking Mrs. Kasabian which ones she had taken.

She said she had tried marijuana, LSD, THC, methedrine, mescaline, peyote, psilocybin, morning glory seeds, amyl nitrate, the cough syrup Romilar.

Mrs. Kasabian said in direct testimony that she experimented with hallucinogenic drugs while living in a series of hippie-type communes. However, she has denied that she was on drugs during the week in August 1969 when Miss Tate and six others were slain.

Mrs. Kasabian has been granted immunity from prosecution in the slayings for telling her story. She says clan leader Charles Manson ordered several followers—including the three women —on the killing missions.

Hughes started questioning

after Manson's lawyer, Irving Kanarek, ended his eight-day cross-examination of Mrs. Kasabian. Hughes began by asking whether the atmosphere of the Manson "family" headquarters — a movie ranch — lent an air of unreality.

Mrs. Kasabian said family members sometimes played roles such as hillbillies or cowboys and Indians. "Yeah, it was sort of a cowboy trip (life style) ... The whole trip was a delusion."

Asked if she had other "delusions," she said she did, and one of them was that Manson was Jesus Christ. Later, she said, she decided Manson was "the devil, a devilish man."

Asked what she thought of the four defendants seated at the counsel table, Mrs. Kasabian said, "I have compassion for them. I wish they were up here doing what I'm doing, telling the truth."

In ending his cross-examination, Irving Kanarek, Manson's attorney, elicited from Mrs. Kasabian the admission that she stole $5,000, then joined Manson's nomadic clan seeking refuge.

Mrs. Kasabian said she took the $5,000 in July 1969 from Charles Melton, a friend of her husband who lived with the Kasabians in the back of a truck. She said Melton received the money as an inheritance but "I thought it was for all of us."

The petite Mrs. Kasabian, who previously testified she joined Manson's clan after a rift with her husband, said she took the money after she met a Manson "family" member and discussed joining.

The witness said she gave the money to Manson clan members.

Prosecutors said no charges were filed in connection with the $5,000 and none are expected.

Mrs. Kasabian's lawyers said charges against her in the murder case probably will be formally dropped by Friday, and she will be taken to an undisclosed hotel.

A prosecutor said Mrs. Kasabian would be under heavy guard at least until she finished testifying. Then, her attorneys said, she plans to seek a legal change of her name so she and her children can live in anonymity "somewhere in the country."

Final Arguments Heard On Campus Disorder Laws

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It will be at least two weeks before a legislative committee decides whether new laws on campus disorders are needed, according to Rep. Robert E. Levitt of Canton.

Levitt, whose committee on campus unrest concluded public hearings Wednesday, said he did not know if a special session of the General Assembly would be called.

But Sen. M. Morris Jackson, D-21, Cleveland, predicted there will be a special session.

"This is an election year, and there are some who feel that is the political thing to do," Jackson said.

The committee heard testimony for and against new laws during the final hearing.

Rep. Robert Netzley, R-7, Laura, suggested legislation to crack down on faculty members, such as outlawing tenure and curtailing professors' salaries when a university is closed because of disorders.

Benson Wolman, Ohio director of the American Civil Liberties Union, said new laws aren't needed and the new campus disorder bill should be repealed.

University campuses, he said, are becoming "banana republics" where police and other officials suspend constitutional rights.

Wolman said civilian commanders lost control of front-line police in campus confrontations.

The bill Wolman asked the legislature to repeal was co-authored by Netzley and Rep. Richard G. Reichel, R-92, Massillon. It provides for dismissal of university personnel convicted of rioting.

Both Netzley and Reichel have asked that a provision for immediate dismissal, prior to any conviction, be put back in. The Senate deleted it.

Netzley also said at the committee hearing that the state should move away from the concept of more funds for large universities and channel the money instead to branches that could become community colleges.

Sgt. Edward Baker of Columbus, representing the Fraternal Order of Police, asked that rioters who assault a police officer be automatically charged with a felony that can't be lowered to a misdemeanor.

He said anyone returning to a campus after being arrested in connection with a disturbance still in progress should be subject to a second immediate arrest.

"We're asking that be a crime in itself," he said.

Agnew Is Top Demo Target For Elections

LAKE OF THE OZARKS, Mo. (AP) — Democrats are planning to make a campaign issue of the words and views of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew this fall, particularly in the big industrial states where their state house fortunes are down.

Republican governors and White House tacticians will do some political strategy making of their own today in the seclusion of a nearby resort.

Lawrence F. O'Brien, the Democratic national chairman, conferred with his party's minority bloc of governors, then said he was not concerned at the prospect that President Nixon and Agnew "will be heavily engaged, out front," working for Republican nominees in the Nov. 3 elections.

He said that might produce a real debate about national issues, particularly with Agnew

Ohio Agents At Kent, Brown Says

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Undercover narcotics agents from the state attorney general's office were on the Kent State University campus before and during May 4 disorders that killed four students, Atty. Gen. Paul Brown reported Wednesday.

The agents "will make a valuable part of our presentation," to a state-ordered grand jury that will investigate the incident in September, Brown said.

Brown said the agents operating on the campus at Kent, Ohio, are part of a section of his office headed by Al Cook, a former federal narcotics investigator.

Brown said his discussions with Justice Department representatives centered on reports and evidence, including television network tapes, relating to the Kent State incident.

The four students were victims of a clash between dissidents and National Guardsmen on the campus.

Head Start Holds Final Teacher Meet

The final Head Start teacher's meeting was held Wednesday afternoon. Plans for the final two day's sessions and the storing of materials were completed.

The group then heard B. E. Becker explain the work of the Reading Research Foundation in Columbus. Several teachers participated in a demonstration of some of the techniques used in the program.

These weekly meetings are a part of the Head Start training program. The teachers exchange art and other helpful ideas.

At an earlier meeting Dr. Meinhard Robinow, pediatrician, from Yellow Springs was guest speaker. Dr. Robinow is medical consultant for this area.

Wednesday morning all Head Start children and their parents, brothers and sisters gathered at Ted Lewis Park for a picnic.

The children enjoyed playing in the park on the playground equipment. Later they did the finger plays and songs they have learned for their parents.

The cooks from the four centers had prepared sandwiches, baked beans, slaw, applesauce, cookies and punch for the picnic. 250 children, parents and teachers enjoyed the affair.

To Open I-270 Link

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Highway Department says it will open next Monday an 8½-mile section of Interstate 270 from I-70 on the west side of Columbus south to I-71. No ceremonies are planned.

Final Arguments Heard
On Campus Disorder Laws

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It will be at least two weeks before a legislative committee decides whether new laws on campus disorders are needed, according to Rep. Robert E. LeVitt of Canton.

LeVitt, whose committee on campus unrest concluded public hearings Wednesday, said he did not know if a special session of the General Assembly would be called.

But Sen. M. Morris Jackson, D-21, Cleveland, predicted there will be a special session.

"This is an election year, and there are some who feel that is the political thing to do," Jackson said.

The committee heard testimony for and against new laws during the final hearing.

Rep. Robert Netzley, R-7, Laura, suggested legislation to crack down on faculty members, such as outlawing tenure and curtailing professors' salaries when a university is closed because of disorders.

Benson Wolman, Ohio director of the American Civil Liberties Union, said new laws aren't needed and the new campus disorder bill should be repealed.

University campuses, he said, are becoming "banana republics" where police and other officials suspend constitutional rights.

Wolman said civilian commanders lost control of front-line police in campus confrontations.

The bill Wolman asked the legislature to repeal was co-authored by Netzley and Rep. Richard G. Reichel, R-92, Massillon. It provides for dismissal of university personnel convicted of rioting.

Both Netzley and Reichel have asked that a provision for immediate dismissal, prior to any conviction, be put back in. The Senate deleted it.

TV Station Sale Nearly Finalized

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — An agreement to sell WKTR-TV, pending approval of the Federal Communications Commission, was announced Wednesday by William G. Rhodes, president of Kitty Hawk Television Corp. He withheld name of the buyer and sale price until a transfer request is filed with the FCC. The station has lost about $1.5 million since it started operating in 1967, Rhodes said, blaming the financial woes on "inherited liabilities" and the general economic situation.

TV Station Sale Nearly Finalized

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — An agreement to sell WKTR-TV, pending approval of the Federal Communications Commission, was announced Wednesday by William G. Rhodes, president of Kitty Hawk Television Corp. He withheld name of the buyer and sale price until a transfer request is filed with the FCC. The station has lost about $1.5 million since it started operating in 1967, Rhodes said, blaming the financial woes on "inherited liabilities" and the general economic situation.

Governors Told Nixon Vetoes Pay Dividends

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
LAKE OF THE OZARKS, Mo. (AP) — A White House emissary has told Republican campaigners not to fret at the prospect that Congress might override President Nixon's veto of budget-raising money bills, advising them that the move will pay GOP political dividends anyway.

Democratic governors charged that the vetoes of education and housing appropriations were part of a GOP political strategy designed to put the blame for inflation on Congress.

Herbert G. Klein, director of communications for the administration, said the move was vital for the sake of the economy — and will win voter support.

"Politically, the public will support the President when the public is so very conscious of increased prices," Klein said after er a political strategy session with 15 GOP governors and five state house candidates.

He said that will be true even if the Democratic-controlled Congress musters the votes to override Nixon on either or both of the vetoes.

At the windup business session of their 62nd national conference Wednesday, the nation's governors got word that one of their favorite financial proposals, for a state share of federal revenues, may receive at least preliminary consideration in Congress.

Illinois' Republican Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, said Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., had sent word that his House Ways and Means Committee would hold hearings on a Nixon revenue-sharing proposal.

The governors voted to lobby with "every means available to ward the immediate and favorable enactment of revenue sharing."

They named a committee headed by Gov. Robert W. Scott of North Carolina to decide how to go about it.

On an issue shelved amid earlier controversy, the conference dismissed the protests of highway interested and voted to seek state authority to spend a portion of federal road-building aid for other modes of transportation, such as rapid transit systems.

Dealing with disorders on the campus and in cities, the governors adopted a statement declaring:

"We condemn the excesses of lawlessness on all sides, be it by those who are called upon to keep or restore the pact."

"We affirm that the first responsibility of the peace-keepers is to protect the safety and lives of all those involved," their policy statement said.

To that was added, at the behest of Democratic Gov. John Bell Williams of Mississippi, "However, we recognize also the correlative right of the peacekeepers . . . to use such force as may be necessary for their own self-protection."

Assessing the significance of Nixon's vetoes, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania, chairman of the GOP governors, said, "The President called the bluffs of those in Congress who are attempting to embarrass him by adding money that would feed the fires of inflation."

Shafer said the embarrassment was the motive of Democrats — but not Republicans — who voted for the two spending bills.

Harry Dent, a Nixon political adviser, told the governors the President has no present plans for overt political campaigning in the state and congressional elections this fall.

"The President felt that he could be most helpful to candidates of our party just by doing a good job as president," Shafer said Dent reported. But Shafer also said Nixon plans to continue his periodic trips to confer with state and local officials away from Washington.

Shafer said the GOP governors consider those trips politically helpful.

New Jersey's Republican Gov. William T. Cahill, said in an interview — he regretted the education bill veto. Cahill, for whom Nixon campaigned in person a year ago, said he understood the reasons, but added:

"I think there could be different priorities. I regret that there has been an attempt to reduce the amount available for education."

Maryland's Democratic Gov. Marvin Mandel said he doesn't think a GOP campaign attempt to fix the blame for inflation on Congress would succeed. "I don't think you can fool the people with these devices," he said.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, the Missouri Democrat elected to take over as chairman of the governors conference, charged that "political strategy" was Nixon's motive.

"He's going to try to convince the voters that Congress is responsible for inflation," Hearnes said. But he acknowledged that the Democratic-controlled Congress also had some political motives in passing the two bills to push spending beyond the budget.

Akron Hit By Outbreak; 4 Injured

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — At least four persons were reported injured Wednesday night in Akron's predominantly Negro near West Side when unruly groups of youths roamed streets for the third straight night.

Police strictly enforced the city's 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew for youths aged 16 and under in an attempt to break up the groups. Some groups were still reported in the area shortly after midnight, but there were no reports of further disturbances.

Four persons were treated and released at Akron General Hospital for cuts received as the youths threw rocks at passing vehicles.

A mailman who was reportedly injured when his mail truck was stoned refused treatment, witnesses said. The windows of the mail truck were smashed, they said.

Police reportedly arrested at least four juveniles.

Officials have yet to determine any reason for the disturbances, and some residents of the area told newsmen that the youths apparently had no motive.

Ten teen-agers had been arrested Tuesday night and police had to use tear gas to disperse one crowd of unruly youths who were throwing rocks at passing cars. Six persons suffered minor injuries and 15 cars were damaged Tuesday night, police said.

One policeman had been hit on the head and knocked unconscious Monday night while trying to break up a disturbance involving more than 300 youths in the same area.

Value Of Governors' Meet Eyed

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

LAKE OF THE OZARKS, Mo. (AP) — Amid grumbling over the absence of President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew from this week's National Governors Conference, it took Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia to say what a number of his colleagues felt.

"Sometimes I wonder whether the governors should be here," Maddox told a news conference. "The conferences are generally always the same, though the settings are different."

Then, after introducing three resolutions, he left for his Atlanta home.

The conference continued and methodically passed its usual round of appeals for a greater share of the federal kitty. As it ended Wednesday, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania proclaimed, "To me, this conference is one of the greatest things we have in America."

Some of the 46 governors who took part in the three-day conference at this lush rural Missouri resort agree with Shafer that the governors have the potential to be a major national political force.

But others conceded in private conversation an increasing awareness of the conference's limitations. Even Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, still the leading figure among the governors, has more or less abandoned his hope of making the state executives into a major force.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, the other major national figure among the governors, was absent, due to a lengthy legislative session in Sacramento.

One observer, attending the conference for the first time, was struck by the contrast between the meeting of state executives and gatherings of congressmen or senators.

Legislators mix easily, whether from the South or North. Republicans or Democrats. Whatever their partisan differences, they quickly learn to work together.

Each governor, however, comes surrounded by an entourage of aides, family and hangers on.

"Getting things done in Congress is a scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours process," said one governor with congressional experience.

Governors Told Nixon Vetoes Pay Dividends

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
LAKE OF THE OZARKS, Mo. (AP) — A White House emissary has told Republican campaigners not to fret at the prospect that Congress might override President Nixon's veto of budget-raising money bills, advising them that the move will pay GOP political dividends anyway.

Democratic governors charged that the vetoes of education and housing appropriations were part of a GOP political strategy designed to put the blame for inflation on Congress.

Herbert G. Klein, director of communications for the administration, said the move was vital for the sake of the economy — and will win voter support.

"Politically, the public will support the President when the public is so very conscious of increased prices," Klein said after a political strategy session with 15 GOP governors and five state house candidates.

He said that will be true even if the Democratic-controlled Congress musters the votes to override Nixon on either or both of the vetoes.

At the windup business session of their 62nd national conference Wednesday, the nation's governors got word that one of their favorite financial proposals, for a state share of federal revenues, may receive at least preliminary consideration in Congress.

Illinois' Republican Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, said Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., had sent word that his House Ways and Means Committee would hold hearings on a Nixon revenue-sharing proposal.

The governors voted to lobby with "every means available toward the immediate and favorable enactment of revenue sharing."

They named a committee headed by Gov. Robert W. Scott of North Carolina to decide how to go about it.

On an issue shelved amid earlier controversy, the conference dismissed the protests of highway interested and voted to seek state authority to spend a portion of federal road-building aid for other modes of transportation, such as rapid transit systems.

Dealing with disorders on the campus and in cities, the governors adopted a statement declaring:

"We condemn the excesses of lawlessness on all sides, be it by those who are called upon to keep or restore the pact.

"We affirm that the first responsibility of peace-keepers is to protect the safety and lives of all those involved," their policy statement said.

To that was added, at the behest of Democratic Gov. John Bell Williams of Mississippi, "However, we recognize also the correlative right of the peacekeepers . . . to use such force as may be necessary for their own self-protection."

Assessing the significance of Nixon's vetoes, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania, chairman of the GOP governors, said, "The President called the bluffs of those in Congress who are attempting to embarrass him by adding money that would feed the fires of inflation."

Shafer said the embarrassment was the motive of Democrats — but not Republicans — who voted for the two spending bills.

Harry Dent, a Nixon political adviser, told the governors the President has no present plans for overt political campaigning in the state and congressional elections this fall.

"The President felt that he could be most helpful to candidates of our party just by doing a good job as president," Shafer said Dent reported. But Shafer also said Nixon plans to continue his periodic trips to confer with state and local officials away from Washington.

Shafer said the GOP governors consider those trips politically helpful.

New Jersey's Republican Gov. William T. Cahill, said in an interview — he regretted the education bill veto, Cahill, for whom Nixon campaigned in person a year ago, said he understood the reasons, but added:

"I think there could be different priorities. I regret that there has been an attempt to reduce the amount available for education."

Maryland's Democratic Gov. Marvin Mandel said he doesn't think a GOP campaign attempt to fix the blame for inflation on Congress would succeed. "I don't think you can fool the people with these devices," he said.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, the Missouri Democrat elected to take over as chairman of the governors conference, charged that "political strategy" was Nixon's motive.

"He's going to try to convince the voters that Congress is responsible for inflation," Hearnes said. But he acknowledged that the Democratic-controlled Congress also had some political motives in passing the two bills to push spending beyond the budget.

Value Of Governors' Meet Eyed

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
LAKE OF THE OZARKS, Mo. (AP) — Amid grumbling over the absence of President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew from this week's National Governors Conference, it took Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia to say what a number of his colleagues felt.

"Sometimes I wonder whether the governors should be here," Maddox told a news conference. "The conferences are generally always the same, though the settings are different."

Then, after introducing three resolutions, he left for his Atlanta home.

The conference continued and methodically passed its usual round of appeals for a greater share of the federal kitty. As it ended Wednesday, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania proclaimed, "To me, this conference is one of the greatest things we have in America."

Some of the 46 governors who took part in the three-day conference at this lush rural Missouri resort agree with Shafer that the governors have the potential to be a major national political force.

But others conceded in private conversation an increasing awareness of the conference's limitations. Even Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, still the leading figure among the governors, has more or less abandoned his hope of making the state executives into a major force.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, the other major national figure among the governors, was absent, due to a lengthy legislative session in Sacramento.

One observer, attending the conference for the first time, was struck by the contrast between the meeting of state executives and gatherings of congressmen or senators.

Legislators mix easily, whether from the South or North, Republicans or Democrats. Whatever their partisan differences, they quickly learn to work together.

Each governor, however, comes surrounded by an entourage of aides, family and hangers on.

"Getting things done in Congress is a scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours process," said one governor with congressional experience.

"Here, I can't do anything for anyone else."

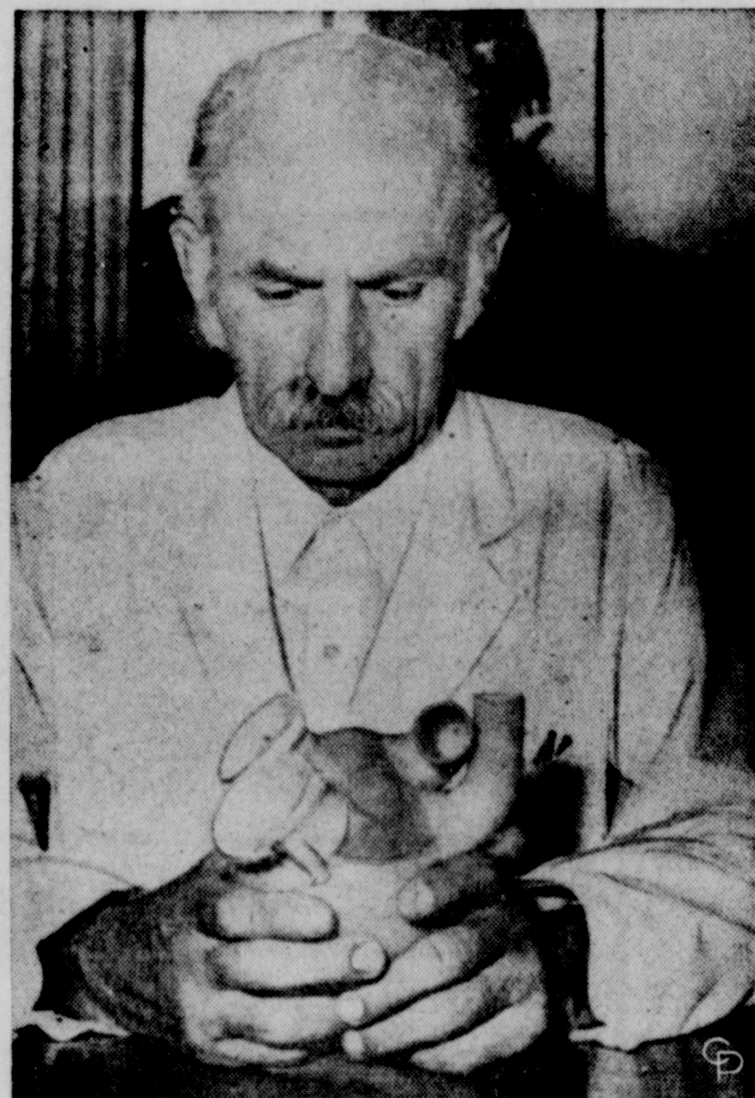

After the business sessions, with a few exceptions, the governors retreated into their own family and official circles.

Still, virtually all consider the conference valuable.

It gives the governors, usually hard-pressed financially and beset by balking legislatures, a chance to commiserate with their fellow executives while picking up a few tips on how other states have handled similar problems. They also get a chance to compare political notes.

It also is a breeding ground for governmental ideas. Revenue sharing, although still far from a reality, has received its major impetus at these sessions. And the concept of a unified transportation fund, with each state deciding its own priorities, received a major boost here this year.

Audubon Originals Given Museum

CHICAGO (AP) — A set of first-edition copies of John James Audubon's "The Birds of America," has been presented to the Field Museum of Natural History.

The anonymous donor's folio, published in four volumes by Audubon in 1827-38, was purchased for him by Kenneth Nebenzahl, a Chicago rare books dealer, at auction in London on Nov. 24, 1969.

The set contains 443 plates engraved in aquatint and colored by hand from original drawings made by Audubon during his 25 years in the United States in the early 1800's.

One of two in existence, the original ownership of the folio was traced to Miss Euphemia Gifford, Derby, England, cousin and close friend of Audubon's wife.

A four-drawer mahogany cabinet, designed by Audubon, in which the set has been kept, helps to account for the folio's fine condition.

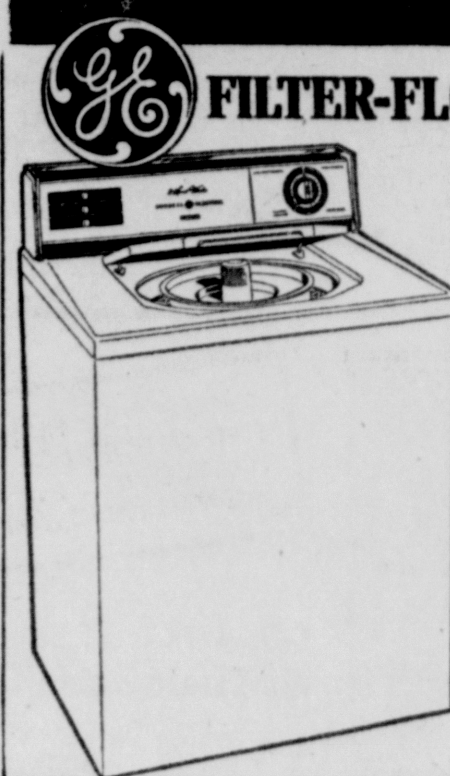

Rhode Island Has 1st Flag At Pole

PROVIDENCE (AP) — Rhode Island's state flag was the first flag of any state in the U.S. to fly over the South Pole. Gov. Dennis J. Roberts presented the flag to Radioman F. C. William McPherson of Warwick and Commissaryman F. C. Chester Segars of Pawtucket, who served with the 1957 expedition exploring the Antarctica in geophysical year 1957.

Dedication Set For Ohio Center

NEW OHIO HISTORICAL CENTER DEDICATION SET — The new $7.5 million Historical Center, located off Interstate 71 and 17th Ave., Columbus, will be dedicated and opened to the public Aug. 23. The sophisticated air-conditioned building has been compared to a giant sandwich with two buildings in one. The bottom slice is a delta-shaped, ground level structure housing all central museum functions of the Historical Society in more than three acres of space. The top slice is a three-story, cantilevered block housing the state archives and the historical library. The sandwich filling is the public reception area or plaza, housing a display of Ohio battleflags, sales, food service and information facilities. Like a gourmet sandwich, the contents spill out onto the open plaza deck, landscaped and provided with promenades. The Center will not be completely equipped and furnished with new exhibits for up to a year after the opening, Society officials have announced.

Fair and warm weather dominated almost the entire nation today and a persistent heat wave that has parched wide areas of the West showed signs of weakening.

Thundershowers were confined to parts of the South and scattered sections of the Rockies. Rainfall amounts generally were light.

Cooler air fanning over the Pacific Northwest triggered rain in portions of Washington.

Temperatures bounded into the 90s or higher again Wednesday from the Southwest to the Canadian border. The mercury hit 100 at Boise, Idaho, and 102 at Reno, Nev.

Reading before dawn ranged from 54 at Sacramento and Crescent City to 98 at Blythe—all in California.

Child Torture Case Probed

CINCINNATI (AP) — Two-month-old Tina Marie Barnett remained in serious condition at Cincinnati General Hospital today with a skull fracture.

Her mother, Mrs. Francis Marie Smith, 21, of Cincinnati, was charged Wednesday with child torture by police.

Police Specialist Sam Glossi, juvenile division, said Mrs. Smith admitted striking the child Saturday because he had been crying. Mrs. Smith said she was emotionally upset over marital difficulties.

The injury was discovered Monday by a baby sitter who telephoned police. The baby sitter's name was withheld.

Society will be dedicated 3 p.m. Aug. 23 by Gov. James A. Rhodes and opened to the public.

The Center was conceived, funded, planned and constructed since 1964 when voters approved a State Capital Improvements bond issue which included $10,000,000 to be allocated for a new Ohio Historical Center.

The acre and a half exhibits planned for the center will not be complete when the building is dedicated, according to Daniel R. Porter, Ohio Historical Society director, who

The Children's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Pickaway County Public Library has a section devoted to books for children. Volumes recently added to the Children's Library are reviewed here.

This week brings to a close the Library's Bookworm summer reading club. Funded by the Kiwanis Club of Circleville, the project was designed to encourage boys and girls of elementary school age to continue their reading through their vacation period.

Emphasis was placed, not on numbers of books read, but rather on consistency of participation. Over two hundred county students enrolled in the program. Since no attendance records were kept, it is impossible to determine the exact amount of involvement. It is the observation of the staff that almost all of these registrants participated to some degree.

Each Thursday morning club members gathered in the auditorium of the Memorial Building to hear a book talk. It was conducted by staff members in some cases, by volunteers in others. Assisting in this area were Mrs. Edward Grigg, Marie Kellstad, Judy Moss, Jody Mead and Mrs. James Rae. In these sessions, children were exposed to different types of literature, a wide range of authors and were told ghost stories, folk tales, myths and legends. Suggestions from these presentations encouraged those attending to broaden their reading tastes. This was clearly evidenced by the greater selectivity shown in the browsing period.

"Cuckoo Clock That Wouldn't Cuckoo" a delightful children's movie, was shown at the final meeting, a party, at which certificates of completion were awarded.

Because of the numbers of children participating, a large force of volunteers was essential to the success of the program. Faithful workers took Children's Room desk duty, assisted in book selection, acted as traffic cops and assisted checkout routines. Some 25 "fairy godmothers" helped on one or more Thursday mornings.

Friday marks the last in the present series of pre-school story hours. Volunteer readers included Allison Hunter, Ann Bowser, Janet Wolford, Mrs. Larry Palmblade, Mrs. David Roll, Cheryl Bobbitt, Sandy Angles and Kelly Spence all spent long hours in the library in preparation for the two programs. Dates for the fall series of pre-school story hours will be announced in this column at a later date.

Puerto Ricans Should Vote, Rhodes Says

LAKE OF THE OZARKS, Mo. (AP)—The voters of Puerto Rico should be permitted to cast ballots in the U.S. presidential elections, the National Governors' Conference said Wednesday.

The nation's governors said Puerto Ricans are American citizens and added geography should not control the right of qualified voters to participate in presidential elections.

The resolution was proposed by Gov. Louis Ferre of Puerto Rico and presented to the conference by Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes, who was also busy with other matters.

Rhodes jokingly accused Utah Gov. Calvin Rampton of inflating his golf handicap to gain advantage in tournaments from Missouri to Japan to Sicily.

Scores turned in when governors golfed at their conference indicated Rampton should have a seven handicap, Rhodes said. Rampton then produced a telegram from his home club attesting to a 16 handicap.

Rhodes announced plans to open an industrial development office in Columbus when he leaves the Statehouse Jan. 11.

"I've been in industrial development for 26 years," he said. He referred to his years in public office as mayor of Columbus and as governor when he worked for business and industrial growth in Ohio.

Rhodes was barred by law from seeking another term as governor and lost a primary bid for Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Department of Public Works, is one of the six most outstanding new historical complexes on the continent, according to museum experts.

The exhibits program is the largest single display project ever undertaken by the Society, administrator of the Center. Hundreds of objects never before exhibited from the Society's collections will be shown for the first time.

Open hours after dedication on Aug. 23 are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday; Sunday and holidays, 1 to 5 p.m.; and Wednesday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. The library archives will be closed Sunday and holidays. Admission is free.

Quebec Is French Speaking Island In An English Sea

BIRDS-EYE VIEW — This aerial photo is a view of downtown Montreal. The big city is called the jewel of La Belle Province — Quebec.

By EDWARD D. McGLYNN
Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper
MONTREAL, Quebec — La Bell Province is much more than just a political subdivision of Canada. It is the attractive homeland of a vibrant people quite confident of their ability to survive as a French-speaking island in an English-speaking sea.

The city of Quebec, from which the province takes its name, was founded by the French explorer Samuel de Champlain in 1608, the year after the founding of Jamestown, Va., and 12 years before the Pilgrims got off the Mayflower at Plymouth, Mass.

Unlike the English colonies to the south, New France, as Quebec was then called, grew quite slowly. In 1763, at the end of the French-and-Indian War when France surrendered the colony to England, there were only 65,000 habitants (colonists) in the vast land. Today, more than 80 per cent of the 6 million Quebecers speak French and almost all of them are descended from the habitants of 1763.

Quebec City is North America's only walled city and a walk through the "old city" reveals that history is everywhere as monuments and churches in the architectural style of old Quebec. The old stone buildings with their colorfully tinted roofs give Quebec a personality all its own.

Ross County Evacuation Need Ends

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Two dozen Ross County families moved back into their homes today after being evacuated Wednesday night because of gas leaking from a Chesapeake & Ohio railroad car.

The leak was discovered around 5:45 p. m., Wednesday, railroad officials said. Believing the smelly gas, ethylene dibromide, to be toxic, sheriff's deputies evacuated a square-mile area around the train, parked 10 miles east of here.

Ethylene dibromide is poisonous and flammable, the sheriff's office said.

The Ohio Highway patrol sealed off a 25-mile stretch of U.S. 35 between U.S. 50 and Ohio 93 in Jackson County and rerouted traffic.

Two Dow Chemical Corp. chemists arrived early today to analyze the gas. They sealed the leak deputies said, and the train was sent on to Russell, Ky.

The gas was enroute from a Dow Chemical plant in Midland, Mich., to one in Tampa, Fla., the railroad said.

The chemical was contained in 74 30-gallon barrels loaded in a tractor-trailer truck mounted piggyback on a railroad car.

The leak was discovered when someone walking along the tracks smelled the gas. Liberty Township firemen were called to the scene but did not attempt to repair the leak.

largest French-speaking city. Incidentally, the city will be host to the 1976 summer Olympic Games.

Founded in 1642, Montreal became a colonial trading center linking its then fur-rich hinter-land with France via the broad St. Lawrence, one of the world's greatest inland waterways. A drive along its 16 mile water-front gives ample proof that Montreal, although 1,000 miles from the sea, is still a leading port.

The city's attractive shops and bistros are staffed by bilingual Montrealers who greet their customers in French but quickly switch to English if the prospective buyer turns out to be a visitor from "south of the border."

Despite the cold Canadian winter Montreal offers a year-round opportunity to stroll and shop in the well-maintained underground arcades that are accessible from the city's leading hotels. This elaborate subterranean shopping and entertainment complex is the largest of its kind in the world.

If an American tourist wishes to learn how a subway should run, he need only ride on the rubber-wheeled Montreal Metro. Visiting straphangers from New York and Boston are loud in their praise of Montreal's three-year-old underground system.

For the hardier soul whose passion is winter sports rather than city-shopping, the roads north of Montreal lead to the nearby Laurentian Mountains with their internationally known ski resorts.

As you travel through the Quebec countryside you become well aware that La Belle Province is another culture domain. The roadside shrines; the small villages with the church in the middle, and the road signs in French bring forth the realization that this is indeed another country.

"Je me Souviens!" — "I Remember!" — is the motto of Quebec, and the modern day Quebecers have not forgotten their Gallic heritage.

Hot Oakland Stops Cleveland 11-4

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Only last weekend the Oakland Athletics were being counted out as serious pennant contenders in the American League West. Today, however, they're camping on the doorstep of first place Minnesota, thanks in part to Campy Campaneris.

Five games ago the A's were third, 10 games back. But since the Twins have dropped every game they've played while Oakland has captured them all, including Wednesday night's 11-4 shelling of Cleveland which, coupled with Minnesota's 5-3 loss to Washington, eased the A's within five games of the top.

Campaneris, the Oakland shortstop whose real first name is Bert, led the assault against the Indians, smacking four hits—one of them a triple—and scoring four runs. Frank Fernandez contributed a three-run homer.

A's manager John McNamara said he "thought it was going to be one of those games" after the Indians grabbed a quick 4-1 lead. "We used up three pitchers in three innings."

"Bob Locker did a great job," McNamara said of the veteran right-handed reliever who blanked Cleveland through the final 5 2-3 frames.

In Wednesday night's other American League action, Baltimore nipped California 5-4. Milwaukee stunned Detroit 6-5, the Chicago White Sox trimmed the

New York Yankees 5-1 and Kansas City split a two-night doubleheader with Boston, winning the nightcap 4-3 after the Red Sox took the opener 7-4.

Frank Howard's 31st home run and Mike Epstein's 15th, both two-run blasts, gave Washington its triumph over the reeling Twins, who managed just eight hits off Jim Hannan, 8-5, and reliever Joe Grzenda.

Andy Etchebarren drilled a two-run single in Baltimore's four-run fourth, then unloaded his second homer of the year leading off the seventh to pace the Baltimore attack that dropped California 1½ games behind the A's.

Milwaukee erupted for four runs in the eighth inning with pinch-hitter Bernie Smith getting the decisive blow, a bases-loaded two-run double that capped the rally. Don Wert hit his sixth homer of the year for Detroit.

Ed Herrmann of the White Sox and Roy White of the Yankees traded solo homers but it was Bill Melton's two-run single in the seventh that made the difference.

Carl Yastrzemski knocked in five runs with a homer and a double and Gary Peters pitched out of several jams to boost Boston over Kansas City in the opener. But the Royals, after seeing their 3-0 lead vanish in the nightcap, got a ninth-inning double from Lou Piniella and the game-winning single from Paul Schaal.

Stoutsville Girls Take Utica, 17-4

The Stoutsville girls softball team collected 20 hits and 17 runs as they topped Utica, 17-4, in the Lancaster Invitational Tournament Wednesday night.

Vicki McNichols tossed the win for the Stoutsville girls allowing 12 hits and only four big batters for the winners with three hits each included Rita Miller, Vicki McNichols and Kathy Cupp.

Grace Miller and Lee-Ann Cave manage the girls who play their second game of the tourney at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Miller Park.

Galion Youth Wins Junior Golf Title

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—"I hit my irons about as well as my woods, so the long, narrow fairways didn't hurt me," Robin Clouse of Galion said after winning the 16-18 old title in the Ohio Juniors Golf Tournament.

He used irons off most of the tees in carding a 75 Wednesday for a two-day score of 149 on the rugged par - 71 Byrnewick Golf Club course.

"I just tried to let the other guys make the mistakes and didn't gamble too much," explained Clouse, who finished 10th in the state high school championships this year.

South Smith of Akron snagged the 15-and-under title, although soaring to a 79 Wednesday for a 36-hole total of 153.

New York Jets Still Don't Know Who's Available

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

With Joe Namath in Florida, Al Atkinson in Pennsylvania and George Saines in Buffalo, the New York Jets can't be certain who's coming and who's going.

Normally about this time, after the first exhibition game, pro football teams are worrying about what rookies and fringe players to cut or keep, but not the Jets. They have other worries. Their offense and defense already have been crippled by injuries and strange happenings.

First and foremost is the case of Namath, the weak-kneed but strong-armed controversial quarterback who led the Jets to a Super Bowl victory two years ago.

The shaggy-haired rebel, who has been holding out for reasons known only to him, was sighted sunning himself on a boat in Fort Lauderdale Wednesday.

Earlier in the day, Coach Weeb Ewbank of the Jets said he had spoken to his AWOL ace by telephone and said Namath is "trying to resolve his problems as soon as possible."

Friends of Namath, meanwhile, reported he would not be back in New York until Sunday or Monday, which would leave him missing for the Jets' second pre-season contest against Atlanta this weekend.

Namath's absence also caused the Jets trouble on defense when middle linebacker Al Atkinson retired last week, blasting Namath.

However, Atkinson was quoted in Drexel Hill, Pa., as saying he might reconsider after reading that the Jets lost all-pro-defensive end Gerry Philbin with a shoulder dislocation.

"I do have responsibilities to the Jets, and I really feel that I owe them all the responsibility of coming back," he said.

Then there is Saines, a stand-out safety for eight years with the Buffalo Bills, who played out his option. The Jets' big weakness last year was in the defensive backfield.

Ewbank said he has talked to Saines, and Saines admitted "there's a possibility I'll be playing in New York. It's all a question of what Buffalo is asking for me," he said.

On the rest of the quarterback scene, Joe Kapp of Minnesota still was among the missing in his money dispute, but Greg Cook, Cincinnati's standout sophomore, showed up in camp for the first time. His whereabouts had been unknown, although it had been reported that he had stayed away to have his ailing arm checked again.

Cincinnati coach Paul Brown said Cook was being fined an undisclosed amount and had admitted he "made a mistake."

Several teams were hit by injury Wednesday, while still others were busy with the usual slashing.

The Super Bowl champion Kansas City Chiefs sent second year cornerback Jim Marsalis to a hospital for observation after he complained of pains in his chest. A team spokesman said it was thought Marsalis, a starter, had bruised ribs.

Washington lost six-year reserve running back Dave Kopay indefinitely with a fractured rib.

Softball Tourney Planned Aug. 21

A slow-pitch softball tournament will be held Aug. 21 through Aug. 30 at the Washington C. H. City Park and is open to all slow-pitch teams in the area.

Trophies will be awarded to the first three places with 15 trophies going to the winning squad. A trophy will be given to the most valuable player and individual trophies will be awarded to the members of the all-stars.

Team entry fee is $30. Deadline for entry in the tourney is Aug. 19.

For more information contact Jim Emerick, 442 Albin Ave., Washington C. H., 335-5828, or Jim Edelman, 615 Park Drive, Washington C. H., 335-3389.

All-Stars Lose To Frankfurt, 1-0

Circleville Little League Major All-Stars were shutout Wednesday by a tough Frankfurt All-Star squad, 1-0.

Frankfurt's Wheeler tossed a one hitter allowing the locals one walk while sending 12 would-be hitters back to the dugout.

Brett Mancini hurled for the Circleville Stars, allowing Frankfurt one walk while being touched for two hits, fanning three.

Pickaway-DuPont To Hold Picnic

Pickaway Du Pont Tri County Little League champions will hold a picnic 11 a.m. Sunday at the Tar Hollow Park pool area for coaches, players and families.

Everyone must bring their own food, drinks and tableware.

The biggest man cut was the littlest guy, Noland Smith of San Francisco, a 5-foot-6 kick return specialist who starred with Kansas City before he was picked up last year by the 49ers.

The St. Louis Cardinals released veteran cornerback Lonnie Sanders, who was obtained in 1968 in a trade with Washington and missed all of last season with a knee injury.

Denver let go running back

Frank Quayle, a fifth round draft pick in 1969 who pulled a muscle and failed a physical.

The New York Giants cut two veterans, reserve defensive end Bruce Anderson and second string wide receiver Joe Koonz. They also placed starting center Greg Larson and reserve safety Tom Longo on the 21-day disabled list. Larson with an eye injury and Longo with a chipped vertebra.

COCA-COLA — The Coca-Cola Jets led the Little League Major race during most of the season losing late in the year and managing a tie in the loop with the BPO Elks. The Dick Bumgarner coached squad was 11-4 for the season. Members of the championship group include Doug Winks, Bob Brown, Doug McGlone, Biff Bumgarner, Boe Barthelms, Gary Combs, Jim Barker, Roger Hill, Allan Ranck, Tom Sisterman, Dan DeFrank, and David DeFrank.

BPO ELKS — The Elks, under the leadership of Bob Wood and Russ Teets, suffered three losses in their first six frays but battled back to a season record of 11-4 and a share of the Little League Major title. Members of the squad include Herb Sturgell, Randy Cradlebaugh, Brett Cristy, Frank Merrill, Gary Wolford, Ronnie Conkel, Dave Phillips, Brad Allison, Bruce De Bruin, Ray Williams, Jim Willison, and Rick Angles.

Cards Manage To Subdue Padres, 5-4

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Manager Red Schoendienst wouldn't have given two cents for Bob Gibson's chances before the game and the fire-balling St. Louis Cardinals ace had to agree.

But before the night was over, the veteran right-hander had chalked up his 16th victory and snapped a major league record in the process.

The record—becoming the first pitcher in history to strike out 200 or more batters in eight seasons—was probably Gibson's easiest work Wednesday night, coming in the third inning when he fanned Nate Colbert, giving him an even 200 for the year.

However, the 34-year-old workhorse had to go 14 innings before subduing the stubborn San Diego Padres 5-4.

He was reached for 13 hits but also fanned 23, upping his season total to 210, sending him ahead of former American League hurlers Walter Johnson and Rube Waddell, who had shared the mark at seven seasons with Gibson.

"I didn't think I was throwing too good in the bullpen," Gibson said afterward. "I was lucky they were swinging."

"If you'd have seen him warm up, I wouldn't have given two cents that he'd go nine innings," said Schoendienst. "I was going to take him out after the 14th."

Carl Taylor, who won Tuesday's game for the Cards with a dramatic ninth inning grand slam, was the co-hero along with Gibson, drawing a bases-loaded walk off losing Ron Willis, forcing in the winning run.

Gibson, who told he had thrown 178 pitches, shrugged and said: "I don't care about the number of pitches. They always talk about the number, but you can throw 90 pitches and lose."

He was saved that fate when Richie Allen clubbed his 32nd homer in the eighth inning, enabling the Cards to tie the score at 4-4 after Colbert had slugged his 26th with a man aboard in the sixth for a 4-3 San Diego lead.

The victory was the Cards' 12th in 14 games and edged them to within eight games of the struggling Pittsburgh Pirates in the East Division scramble.

In other games, Los Angeles routed the Pirates 11-4. The New York Mets edged Cincinnati 2-1. San Francisco dropped Chicago 6-3. Atlanta nipped Montreal 8-7.

Wes Parker raced home with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning on Pirates' reliever Dave Giusti's wild pitch and then the Dodgers broke loose for seven runs in the ninth inning to wallop Pittsburgh.

The loss, coupled with the Mets' triumph, dropped the Pirates' lead to only 1½ games over New York in the East.

Red-hot Ted Sizemore drove in the second eighth inning run for the Dodgers with a single and Jeff Torborg drilled a two-run single and Willie Crawford added a two-run double in the big ninth.

The Dodgers, who have won four straight, to get within 11 games of the Reds in the West. They have ripped 67 hits, scored 36 runs and are hitting .419 during their streak. Sizemore has batted at a .667 clip with 16 for 24 in his eight-game hitting string.

Wayne Garrett cracked a pair of doubles and scored both runs while Garv Gentry stonned the Reds on four hits for the Mets' victory.

Gentry, 8-6, won his first game since June 27. Tony Perez spoiled the shutout for the right-hander with a run-scoring double in the sixth.

Willie Mays' third hit drove in the lead run in the sixth inning in the Giants' triumph. Mays' run-scoring single snapped a 3-3 tie. He had another single and a triple. Bobby Bonds had a homer for San Francisco.

Hank Aaron drove in three runs for the Braves with his 34th homer and a single and moved into an eighth-place tie with Al Simmons on the all-time RBI list with 1,827. Mack Jones homered for the Expos.

Larry Dierker spun a five-hitler in the Astros triumph, striking out three Phils in raising his mark to 11-10. Denis Menke rapped a solo homer for the Astros.

Gentry, Mets Shut Off Reds With 4 Hits; 2-1 Victors

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I've been thinking about shutting out the Reds since they whipped me earlier this season," said New York pitcher Gary Gentry.

"To me a 2-1 victory against a team like the Reds is just like a 1-0 shutout."

Gentry, plagued by a sore arm had his arm and fingers wrapped in ice after setting Cincinnati down with four hits Wednesday night.

Piranha Swim Team Holds Awards Fete

The Circleville Swim Team held its awards banquet last night in Ted Lewis Park, to climax its summer swimming schedule.

During the evening, the "Piranha's" who have won the Mt. Pleasant League Championship this summer, named Jorge Cook and John Lawter as Co-Captains for next year.

Trophies, donated by local merchants, were awarded as follows: most outstanding first year swimmer, donated by 23 Auto Parts, to Terri Strawser; outstanding eight and under swimmer, donated by First National Bank, to Cindy Sparks; outstanding girl swimmer, donated by Third National Bank, to Nancy Guenther; outstanding boy swimmer, donated by Scioto Building and Loan, to Steve Penn; best all stroke boy, donated by Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. to Mike Lawter.

High point boy, donated by J. Effort Award, donated by Palms Carry Out, to Mary Ann Cairns; C.S.T. Effort Award, donated by Burger Chef, to Lisa Lintner; C.S.T. Effort Award donated by Dynamic Sales to Jane Guenther.

The award to the outstanding backstroke swimmer, donated by Alan Krieger, went to Steve Penn; the award to the outstanding butterfly swimmer, donated by Brenda Anderson went to Mary Reilly; and the award to the outstanding breaststroke swimmer, donated by Debbie Shea, went to Mike Cairns.

Ties Feature PCC Men's Golf

Steve Brudzinski, Jack Luce and Tom McGuire tied for low gross with 36 and Dick Theis and Tim Timberlake netted 32 to feature action in the Pickaway Country Club Men's League.

Winning team was No. 7 with 17½ points. Team members are Tom McGuire, Bob Moon, George Hamrick, Ben Brian, Gerry Ayers, Bob Roeser and Dick Theis.

Team No. 10 is leading the league with 67 points, Team No. 2 is second with 66½ points and Team No. 7 is third with 65 points.

The two-man scramble set for Saturday has been cancelled and will be played at a later date.

Junior club tournament will be held Tuesday and banquet will follow the golf action.

Hitting Features Slo Pitch Action

Sixteen was the magic number in Slo Pitch action as Circleville Oil blasted GE, 16-2, and Circleville Merchants outslugged the GE squad, 16-10.

Brent Bell and Terry Anderson paced the Oilers victory with three hits each while Ronnie Morris and Gary Leisey added two safeties apiece.

Jeff Ankrom and Leisey cracked homers for the winners. The Merchants outscored the GE nine in a wild contest as Bill Hoover rapped three hits for the businessmen.

Jake Bailey and Jerry Collins smashed homers for the winners.

Hot Oakland Stops Cleveland 11-4

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Only last weekend the Oakland Athletics were being counted out as serious pennant contenders in the American League West. Today, however, they're camping on the doorstep of first-place Minnesota, thanks in part to Campy Campaneris.

Five games ago the A's were third, 10 games back. But since the Twins have dropped every game they've played while Oakland has captured them all, including Wednesday night's 11-4 shelling of Cleveland which, coupled with Minnesota's 5-3 loss to Washington, eased the A's within five games of the top.

Campaneris, the Oakland shortstop whose real first name is Bert, led the assault against the Indians, smacking four hits — one of them a triple — and scoring four runs. Frank Fernandez contributed a three-run homer.

A's manager John McNamara said he "thought it was going to be one of those games" after the Indians grabbed a quick 4-1 lead. "We used up three pitchers in three innings."

"Bob Locker did a great job," McNamara said of the veteran right-handed reliever who blanked Cleveland through the final 5 2-3 frames.

In Wednesday night's other American League action, Baltimore nipped California 5-1, Milwaukee stunned Detroit 6-5, the Chicago White Sox trimmed the

New York Yankees 5-1 and Kansas City split a two-night double-header with Boston, winning the nightcap 4-3 after the Red Sox took the opener 7-4.

Frank Howard's 31st home run and Mike Epstein's 15th, both two-run blasts, gave Washington its triumph over the reeling Twins, who managed just eight hits off Jim Hannan, 8-5, and reliever Joe Grzenda.

Andy Etchebarren drilled a two-run single in Baltimore's four-run fourth, then unloaded his second homer of the year leading off the seventh to pace the Baltimore attack that dropped California 1 1/2 games behind the A's.

Milwaukee erupted for four runs in the eighth inning with pinch-hitter Bernie Smith getting the decisive blow, a bases-loaded two-run double that capped the rally. Don Wert hit his sixth homer of the year for Detroit.

Ed Herrmann of the White Sox and Roy White of the Yankees traded solo homers but it was Bill Melton's two-run single in the seventh that made the difference.

Carl Yastrzemski knocked in five runs with a homer and a double and Gary Peters pitched out of several jams to boost Boston over Kansas City in the opener. But the Royals, after seeing their 3-0 lead vanish in the nightcap, got a ninth-inning double from Lou Piniella and the game-winning single from Paul Schaaf.

COCA-COLA — The Coca-Cola Jets led the Little League Major race during most of the season losing late in the year and managing a tie in the loop with the BPO Elks. The Dick Bumgarner coached squad was 11-4 for the season. CINCINNATI (AP) — "I've been thinking about shutting out the Reds since they whipped me earlier this season," said New York pitcher Gary Gentry.

"To me a 2-1 victory against a team like the Reds is just like a 1-0 shutout."

Gentry, plagued by a sore arm had his arm and fingers wrapped in ice after setting Cincinnati down with four hits Wednesday night.

"I was most proud of the 3-2 pitch I made to John Bench in the ninth inning," said Gentry. He shook off two fast ball signals from catcher Duffy Dyer. Bench hit the previous pitch into the stands but foul.

"I threw the changeup and it would have been a ball but I figured Bench would be fishing," Gentry said. "I was just trying to get him out."

Bench hit a grounder to Al Weis who threw him out at first to end the game.

"The victory was the Cards' 12th in 14 games and edged them to within eight games of the struggling Pittsburgh Pirates in the East Division scramble.

Whips Leave IL Cellar

The Winnipeg Whips have done it — huffed and puffed their way out of the International League cellar for the first time since May 2.

The Whips have put together a seven-game winning streak, counting Wednesday night's 6-1 victory over faltering Rochester.

The Toledo Mudhens now repose in the basement after getting a 12-9 beating at the hands of the league leading Syracuse Chiefs. Toledo is 28 1/2 games behind Syracuse, and a slim three percentage points behind Winnipeg, which in turn is 27 games out of first place.

In other league action Wednesday night, Columbus edged Richmond 7-6 and Louisville and Tidewater split a doubleheader, the Colonels taking the opener 9-3, the Tides evening the score with a 2-0 second game shutout.

Softball Tourney Planned Aug. 21

A slow-pitch softball tournament will be held Aug. 21 through Aug. 30 at the Washington C. H. City Park and is open to all slow-pitch teams in the area.

Trophies will be awarded to the first three places with 15 trophies going to the winning squad. A trophy will be given to the most valuable player and individual trophies will be awarded to the members of the all-stars.

Team entry fee is $30. Deadline for entry in the tourney is Aug. 19.

For more information contact Jim Emerick, 442 Albin Ave., Washington C. H., 335-5828, or Jim Edelemon, 615 Park Drive, Washington C. H., 335-3389.

Stoutsville Girls Take Utica, 17-4

The Stoutsville girls softball team collected 20 hits and 17 runs as they topped Utica, 17-4, in the Lancaster Invitational Tournament Wednesday night.

Vicki McNichols tossed the win for the Stoutsville girls allowing 12 hits and only four counters.

Big bats for the winners with three hits each included Rita Miller, Vicki McNichols and Kathy Cupp.

Grace Miller and Lee-Ann Cave manage the girls who play their second game of the tourney at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Miller Park.

New York Jets Still Don't Know Who's Available

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

With Joe Namath in Florida, Al Atkinson in Pennsylvania and George Saines in Buffalo, the New York Jets can't be certain who's coming and who's going.

Normally about this time, after the first exhibition game, pro football teams are worrying about what rookies and fringe players to cut or keep, but not the Jets. They have other worries. Their offense and defense already have been crippled by injuries and strange happenings.

First and foremost is the case of Namath, the weak-kneed but strong-armed controversial quarterback who led the Jets to a Super Bowl victory two years ago.

The shaggy-haired rebel, who has been holding out for reasons known only to him, was sighted sunning himself on a boat in Fort Lauderdale Wednesday.

Earlier in the day, Coach Weeb Ewbank of the Jets said he had spoken to his AWOL ace by telephone and said Namath is "trying to resolve his problems as soon as possible."

Friends of Namath, meanwhile, reported he would not be back in New York until Sunday or Monday, which would leave him missing for the Jets' second pre-season contest against Atlanta this weekend.

Namath's absence also caused the Jets trouble on defense when middle linebacker Al Atkinson retired last week, blasting Namath.

However, Atkinson was quoted in Drexel Hill, Pa., as saying he might reconsider after reading that the Jets lost all-pro-defensive end Gerry Philbin with a shoulder dislocation.

"I do have responsibilities to the Jets, and I really feel that I owe them all the responsibility of coming back," he said.

Then there is Saines, a stand-out safety for eight years with the Buffalo Bills, who played out his option. The Jets' big weakness last year was in the defensive backfield.

Ewbank said he has talked to Saines, and Saines admitted "there's a possibility I'll be playing in New York. It's all a question of what Buffalo is asking for me," he said.

On the rest of the quarterback scene, Joe Kapp of Minnesota still was among the missing in his money dispute, but Greg Cook, Cincinnati's standout sophomore, showed up in camp for the first time. His whereabouts had been unknown, although it had been reported that he had stayed away to have his ailing arm checked again.

Cincinnati coach Paul Brown said Cook was being fined an undisclosed amount and had admitted he "made a mistake."

Several teams were hit by injury Wednesday, while still others were busy with the usual slashing.

The Super Bowl champion Kansas City Chiefs sent second year cornerback Jim Marshall to a hospital for observation after he complained of pains in his chest. A team spokesman said it was thought Marshall, a starter, had bruised ribs.

Washington lost six-year reserve running back Dave Kopay indefinitely with a fractured rib.

The biggest man cut was the littlest guy, Noland Smith of San Francisco, a 5-foot-6 kick return specialist who starred with Kansas City before he was picked up last year by the 49ers.

The St. Louis Cardinals released veteran cornerback Ronnie Sanders, who was obtained in 1968 in a trade with Washington and missed all of last season with a knee injury.

Denver let go running back

Frank Quayle, a fifth round draft pick in 1969 who pulled a muscle and failed a physical.

The New York Giants cut two veterans, reserve defensive end Bruce Anderson and second string wide receiver Joe Koonz. They also placed starting center Greg Larson and reserve safety Tom Longo on the 21-day disabled list. Larson with an eye injury and Longo with a chipped vertebra.

Post 25 Nipped By Miamisburg

Washington C. H. Post 25 dropped a heartbreaking 4-3 decision to Miamisburg in 11 innings in the Ohio American Legion Tournament Wednesday at Ashland.

added a single to the effort. Ty Ankrom was hitless outplayed a fine defensive game at third for Washington.

Post 25 went against Lancaster at 9 a.m. this morning. A win will send them back into action this afternoon but a loss will send them home.

Sandusky and Miamisburg remain the only unbeaten squads in the tourney. There are seven teams left in the tournament.

However the roof fell in when two singles, an error, a walk and a bloop single by Montgomery chased two runs across for Miamisburg and Washington's hopes went with them.

Post 25 jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the second frame on an error, a double by Jones and a single by Steve Bihl.

MIAMISBURG fought back with a run in the sixth and another tally in the seventh to tie the game and set the stage for the fateful 11th.

Steve Bihl started on the mound for Post 25 and went 6 2-3 innings. Bryce Brown came on for 2 2-3 innings and Bowers finished up and was the pitcher of record. They allowed 10 hits, five walks and fanned seven.

Johnston and Pyle shared the hill for Miamisburg and gave up seven hits, struckout 12 and didn't issue a free pass.

Pat Palinkas is the first woman ever to be signed to play professional football, and she'll play her first game Aug. 22 at Foreman Field at the Kiwanis Bowl when the Neptunes meet the Orlando Panthers.

Other members of the Norfolk team aren't exactly ecstatic that they'll come face to face with the first woman player in professional football.

"Besides being a difficult situation in the dressing room, she might present a sticky problem on the football field," said George Hughes, Neptune Football coach.

Pat Palinkas is a 130-pound blonde from Tampa, Fla., who signed a contract recently with the Orlando Panthers as a place holder. She'll hold the ball for the field goals and extra points after a Panther touchdown.

Pat was signed to the unusual contract when she accompanied her husband, Steve, to place-kicking tryouts and Orlando coach Paul Massey signed the husband-wife team to one-year contracts.

(Unofficial sources claim she's a better holder than he is kicker.)

SPORTS Highlights

MORAGA, Calif. (AP) — All-male St. Mary's College has jumped ahead of the women's liberation drive by naming Lynne Abbes Rolley as intercollegiate tennis coach.

The pretty 21-year-old brunette from Orinda, Calif., is one of the youngest and no doubt prettiest coaches of a men's team in the country.

St. Mary's officials said Wednesday they did not know of any other woman coaching a men's team on the college varsity level.

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — The Flint Generals will have first choice during a draft of players Aug. 21 from the defunct Columbus Checkers, the International Hockey League announced Wednesday.

The seven remaining IHL teams will play more games in the 1970-71 season to fill the vacancy created when the Columbus team folded because of mounting debts, a league spokesman said.

British Troops Quell Riot

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP) — Roman Catholics in Londonderry battled British troops for four hours early today, but the troops and barricades of barbed wire prevented a repetition of last year's bloody Aug. 12 religious warfare.

The rioting in Londonderry's Bogside district erupted just before midnight, after a day of Protestant parades in other parts of the city celebrating a 17th century Protestant victory over the Catholics.

Militant Catholics who had been penned in the Bogside all day opened up on the soldiers just before midnight with barages of rocks, bottles and gasoline bombs.

Crouching behind riot shields, the troops fired about 50 rounds of their latest antiriot weapon—six-inch rubber bullets intended to cripple the legs. They scattered the rioters for only a brief time. The rioters regrouped for another round, and the soldiers responded with volleys of tear gas, filling the winding streets with clouds of choking smoke.

Three soldiers and one civilian were reported injured. Casualties among the rioters were not known. The Catholics have their own first aid stations deep inside their district.

The riot was a backlash reaction to the parade through Londonderry Tuesday of more than 6,000 Protestant men who marched in bowler hats and gaudy sashes to drum and fife commemorating the lifting of a Catholic siege of Londonderry in 1689.

Last year's parade touched off fighting between the Bogside and the Protestants which spread across Northern Ireland and has broken out again and again since, with more than a score killed and hundreds wounded.

This year, double barricades of barbed wire and thousands of troops and police kept the Catholics away from the parading Protestants. Although the government had banned the parade, the security forces did not try to stop the marchers because there was no confrontation between the two religious factions.

Sir Arthur Young, Northern Ireland's chief of police, said it was the attorney general's responsibility to "decide what is a procession." He said the names of some of the marchers had been recorded, and the attorney general would decide whether they should be prosecuted.

Only two brief incidents were reported.

One casualty of the day was a visitor from the Irish Republic, Conor Cruise O'Brien, the expert on Africa and the United Nations, critic of U.S. foreign policy and member of the Irish Parliament. Gangs of Protestants set on him twice and beat him up. He said he got "a few busted ribs," and the police gave him a protective guard.

In London, Scotland Yard refused to comment on newspaper reports that sabotage experts of the outlawed Irish Republican Army plan to blow up seven military bases in England.

The reports said an IRA team would attempt to block delivery of arms and ammunition to British troops in Northern Ireland, and their chief target was the factory in Surrey that makes the CS nausea gas the troops are using in Northern Ireland.

RETIREMENT HONOR — Former city fire department lieutenant, Fred Howell, receives a retirement pin and gift certificate during special ceremonies at the fire station Tuesday evening. Making the presentation in behalf of all the firemen is Lt. Mike Brown (right). Howell retired May 1 after 31 years of service with the department.

Teays Valley Students Will Note Class Rescheduling

September 1 will open the 1970-71 school season for students in the Teays Valley School District.

Superintendent Benis Lutz announced that there would be a change in bus scheduling and class scheduling this year, due to busing of students to the Eastland Joint Vocational School.

Classes will take up at the high school at 8 a.m., and the school day will conclude at 3:15 p.m. The three elementary schools will begin classes at 8:30 and dismiss at 2:30 p.m.

All bus routes will run one half-hour earlier than last year, Lutz explained. Otherwise, the bus routes themselves will be essentially the same.

FOR those students who will be attending the Eastland Vocational School, there will be transportation from the Teays Valley High School to the center.

On the first day Eastland is in session (Aug. 31) students will need to find a way to the high school and a bus will leave from there for Eastland at 7:45 a.m. Beginning Sept. 1, those students will ride regular bus routes to the Teays Valley High School and make the transfer to the Eastland bus.

On the first day of school, the buses will run at their regular times in the morning, but classes will dismiss one hour earlier than usual — at 1:30 in the elementary grades and 2:15 for the high school.

Lunches will be served in all cafeterias in the district on that first day. Prices will remain the same as last year.

Beginning Aug. 17 all schools will be open for student registration or for parents who wish to talk with the principal about any matters concerning their child's schedule.

PROTECTOR AND PROTECTED — Game Protector Tom Weldon plays with Rocky Raccoon. Weldon acquired the young animal recently and it has become a regular pet, although Matt, the game protector's young son, and Rocky are not the best of friends. The animal will be returned to its natural habitat when it matures enough to fend for itself, Weldon says.

Golfer Survives Lightning Bolt

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Vernon Lee Treadway, 32, of Monroe, Ohio, was in fair condition at Mercy Hospital today after surviving a lightning bolt Wednesday while playing golf at the Elks Country Club.

The Butler County Sheriff's office credited the flag pin on the fourth green with saving Treadway's life by grounding the electricity.

Treadway was knocked unconscious but was revived by one of the members of his foursome by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. The bolt struck just as Treadway was removing the pin.

Copeland Workers To Vote On Offer

SIDNEY, Ohio (AP)—About 2,700 members of Local 725, International Union of Electrical Workers will vote Saturday on a contract agreement reached Wednesday with the Copeland Refrigeration Corp.

Workers struck the plant two weeks ago after nearly a year without a contract. Details of the tentative pact were withheld until after the ratification vote.

the troops fired about 50 rounds of their latest antiriot weapon—six-inch rubber bullets intended to cripple the legs. They scattered the rioters for only a brief time. The rioters regrouped for another round, and the soldiers responded with volleys of tear gas, filling the winding streets with clouds of choking smoke.

Three soldiers and one civilian were reported injured. Casualties among the rioters were not known. The Catholics have their own first aid stations deep inside their district.

The riot was a backlash reaction to the parade through Londonderry Tuesday of more than 6,000 Protestant men who marched in bowler hats and gaudy sashes to drum and fife commemorating the lifting of a Catholic siege of Londonderry in 1689.

Last year's parade touched off fighting between the Bogside and the Protestants which spread across Northern Ireland and has broken out again and again since, with more than a score killed and hundreds wounded.

This year, double barricades of troops and police kept the Catholics away from the parading Protestants. Although the government had banned the parade, the security forces did not try to stop the marchers because there was no confrontation between the two religious factions.

Sir Arthur Young, Northern Ireland's chief of police, said it was the attorney general's responsibility to "decide what is a procession." He said the names of some of the marchers had been recorded, and the attorney general would decide whether they should be prosecuted. Only two brief incidents were reported.

One casualty of the day was a visitor from the Irish Republic, Conor Cruise O'Brien, the expert on Africa and the United Nations, critic of U.S. foreign policy and member of the Irish Parliament. Gangs of Protestants set on him twice and beat him up. He said he got "a few busted ribs," and the police gave him a protective guard.

In London, Scotland Yard refused to comment on newspaper reports that sabotage experts of the outlawed Irish Republican Army plan to blow up seven military bases in England.

The reports said an IRA team would attempt to block delivery of arms and ammunition to British troops in Northern Ireland, and their chief target was the factory in Surrey that makes the CS nausea gas the troops are using in Northern Ireland.

RETIREMENT HONOR — Former city fire department lieutenant, Fred Howell, receives a retirement pin and gift certificate during special ceremonies at the fire station Tuesday evening. Making the presentation in behalf of all the firemen is Lt. Mike Brown (right). Howell retired May 1 after 31 years of service with the department.

Teays Valley Students Will Note Class Rescheduling

September 1 will open the 1970-71 school season for students in the Teays Valley School District.

Superintendent Benis Lutz announced that there would be a change in bus scheduling and class scheduling this year, due to busing of students to the Eastland Joint Vocational School.

Classes will take up at the high school at 8 a.m., and the school day will conclude at 3:15 p.m. The three elementary schools will begin classes at 8:30 and dismiss at 2:30 p.m.

All bus routes will run one half-hour earlier than last year, Lutz explained. Otherwise, the bus routes themselves will be essentially the same.

USE THE CLASSIFIEDS

FOR those students who will be attending the Eastland Vocational School, there will be transportation from the Teays Valley High School to the center.

On the first day Eastland is in session (Aug. 31) students will need to find a way to the high school and a bus will leave from there for Eastland at 7:45 a.m. Beginning Sept. 1, those students will ride regular bus routes to the Teays Valley High School and make the transfer to the Eastland bus.

On the first day of school, the buses will run at their regular times in the morning, but classes will dismiss one hour earlier than usual — at 1:30 in the elementary grades and 2:15 for the high school.

Lunches will be served in all cafeterias in the district on that first day. Prices will remain the same as last year.

Beginning Aug. 17 all schools will be open for student registration or for parents who wish to talk with the principal about any matters concerning their child's schedule.

PROTECTOR AND PROTECTED — Came Protector Tom Weldon plays with Rocky Raccoon. Weldon acquired the young animal recently and it has become a regular pet, although Matt, the game protector's young son, and Rocky are not the best of friends. The animal will be returned to its natural habitat when it matures enough to fend for itself, Weldon says.
